WILL ROGERS says:

(Special To The News)
BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Dec. 26.—In reading my Christmas good wishes and the morning papers, found a long editorial seriously comparing our Christmas Day here to the one held in Bethlehem, Judea.
In fact it kinder gives us the best of it in the way of weather and natural resources over Christ's original birthplace, and it is rather insinuated in case our Savior is to be born again, the Chamber of Commerce should get busy now and book the event amid ideal surroundings.
Bethlehem may have had us beat on milk and honey, but I bet we use more cold cream here than they did, and we got some awful good orange marmalade, and it would be cheap.

Murder Result Of Argument Over Planned Crime

Dying Man Says He Was Hired
To Kill Official But Lost Nerve

(International News Service)
BRADFORD, Pa., Dec. 25.—In a death-bed confession Sam Nicoletti, 36, reputed Brooklyn, N. Y., gunman, told police here just before his death today how his loss of nerve when he was to have consummated a contracted killing of Al Ritchie, assistant county detective, resulted in a gun battle with John Sancer, 32, of Bradford, that ended fatally when Nicoletti died this morning.

Nicoletti was found lying along the railroad tracks at the lower end of the city in a dying condition. A few minutes later, Sancer, his body riddled with three bullet wounds, was taken into custody by police as he staggered away from the scene of the shooting.

According to Nicoletti's confession he was to have received $500 from Sancer when Ritchie had been slain. At the last moment, he said, he decided not to carry out the "contract" and met Sancer by the railroad tracks to so inform him.

As they stood arguing Sancer whipped out a revolver and shot him once in the back. Nicoletti told police. As he fell, the victim reached into his coat pocket and without removing the revolver, fired three shots at Sancer, each of which took effect.

The two men lay side by side on hospital cots. Sancer looked feebly on as police extracted the confession from Nicoletti. When he had gasped out the last few words of the confession, Nicoletti fell back on his pillow and died.

County Detective Jack Allison said he would file a formal charge of murder against Sancer as soon as the latter's physical condition allows him to be questioned.

Josiah H. Pinkweed was the wealthiest man in town and he had only one son. For his son Mr. Pink-weed was ready to do a great number of things. In the adjacent town there was a small woolen mill for sale, and it occurred to Mr. Pink-weed that his son could manage that mill successfully and conduct the business of it so that it would make money. He, therefore, made the son a proposal. He said to him that if the boy would undertake to run the business of the mill, he, the father, would give him a certain amount of money toward the purchase of it.

The young man fell in with the idea gladly and, relying on the promise of his father, bought the mill. But the next day Mr. Pink-weed was taken ill and in a few days he died. When the young man requested the executor of his father's estate for the money with which to pay down on the purchase of the mill, the executor turned him down.
The young man sued.

Bend a match in the form of an arch and place another match in the position indicated above, to form a pyramid. Raise them both from the table, together, and replace them in their present position without letting either piece fall, by means of a long pin, knitting needle or match, inserted between them.
This is best done when there is a cloth on the table.

STAR LORE

PLOTTING YOUR OWN CELESTIAL
HOUR MERIDIANS
By Arthur Dev. Carpenter

In August the great Square of Pegasus presents itself in the eastern evening sky. This is a good time to trace the First Meridian (celestial), beginning at the North star, Polaris, and extending just to the west of the two stars forming the east side of the great Square, and so on southward. It will eventually terminate at the south celestial pole under the southern horizon. Having once located the First Meridian, it is easy to watch it make its way westward across the sky. In December it is well to the west. The second hour meridian of Right Ascension passes through the constellation Arises 30 degrees east of this first meridian.

was kidnapped, and later died from injuries received previous to the capture.

Attorney William McElwee of this city has filed a claim of Elmer E.
Hogue, of 309 South Walnut street, this city. It is alleged that Hogue was in Phoenix at the time Glenn and Irene were brought in, and identified them, presumably from newspaper photographs which he had in his possession. It is claimed that the Arizona officers did not know, or had no idea who their prisoners were until Hogue informed them.

County Commissioners have set
January 12 as a time when claims can be produced. A hearing will be given to all who want to share in the reward. It is possible that there may be some representatives here from Phoenix on that date if they do not come in persons, it is probable that further proof of claims will be presented in the shape of affidavits.

AUTOMOBILE LEGISLATION

STATE legislatures throughout the United States will convene within a few days to introduce, debate and either pass or defeat a superabundance of plain and fancy legislation. Thousands of bills will have been introduced before the last of these lawmaking bodies adjourns.

As they have for the last decade, most of these legislatures will devote more time to matters relating to highways and traffic than to any other single problem. New ways to tap this rich source of public revenues will be prospected for; traffic control will be tampered with; court congestion due to the flood of traffic accident cases, criminal processes arising from popularization of the motor car, regulation of motor bus and truck traffic, highway construction programs and many other phases of the question will be studied. Legislators, like the public in general, are motor-minded.

At least a dozen states will debate the question whether compulsory liability insurance is necessary for the protection of the public against the financially irresponsible driver who is often equally irresponsible in his manner of operating a motor vehicle. Massachusetts, which now requires such insurance, will be cited as a good and had example, respectively, by the opposing sides in each of these debates.

Thirty-seven states in which motor vehicle operators are not yet licensed after proving their qualifications by state examination will approach a step nearer to such control, for many traffic experts believe all states will come to it in time. The lower accident rate of the other 11 states and the District of Columbia is cited as the reason.

UNSOLVED RADIO PROBLEM

It was a truly herculean task of bringing some semblance or order into the chaos in which radio found itself a year or two ago, but the federal radio commission has accomplished much, both for the listener and the broadcaster, except of course, a broadcaster here and there was driven from the air for reason's which seemed sufficient.

That job, however, is not finished. There is still room for considerable unseemly scrambling of stations which crowd each other too closely upon the fireless dials. It is a common complaint of radio users that when atmospheric conditions are best for radio purposes interference outdoes static at its worst.

Scrambled programs will never be popular, but there are aspirants for public favor by way of the ether who are prone to forget this. Unless some authority rigidly prevents it, stations will continue crowding upon one another's heels, ruining the enjoyment of millions at the same time that they thoughtlessly sacrifice their own chance of winning listeners' approval.

So closely packed are the stations on some sections of the dial that it is difficult to see how the radio commission's "police stations" can discover broadcasters poaching upon the reserves of others. They will, however, have no difficulty in finding proof of interference.

The test of selectivity must be the popular cheap receiving set, not the expensive receivers of the rich.

WHAT WILL IT MEAN TO YOU?

What will the New Year mean to you?

Why, precisely what you make it.

More than ever before, perhaps, the year which we are soon to enter hangs upon initiative, endeavor and shrewdness.

The time is past when men may play fast and loose with their business or their work.

The day for reckless expenditure and loose dealing is past.

The time when the competition for labor was such that "anything went" is over.

Next year there will be business in fair proportions for all, but there will be closer margins and keener competition.

We are getting back to the place where profits will be made by those who can combine small profits on individual sales with volume, there will be work for those who can and do produce more for their pay.

Nor need we trouble ourselves about this. It is a natural condition and brings out the best there is in men and in the end leaves the country more soundly prosperous than when so-called "good times" make men careless, reckless, and lazy and wasteful.

The result will be cheaper goods for the masses and good profits and steady work for those who know how to take advantage of the circumstances of the moment. The New Year, therefore, will be just what we make it.

The man too busy to take exercise must some day take time to see the doctor.

"The unemotional never are turned by popular clamor." Truck drivers, for example.

Man may not be superior, but he won't marry anything just to escape bachelorhood.

Some people take an oath to tell the truth and then feel abused if a lawyer tries to pry the truth from them.

Preparedness means the spending of $4,500,000,000 annually by the nations of the world to obtain the same comparative strength as if none of them spent anything.

All of US

By Marshall Maslin

WE KNOW BETTER, BUT—

We know better, then why don't we act better? Why do we do such foolish things? We're old enough to know better, then why do we act so young and foolish—as if we never learned anything by experience, as if we never would learn anything by experience?

I'm not answering these questions. I'm just asking them.

Why do we drive too fast on slippery roads? Why do we take such chances with our lives—with our happiness?

Why are we superstitious? Why do we hesitate to step on cracks or walk under ladders? Why do we believe in dreams? Why do we believe in luck and do such silly things to gain that whimsical lady's favor?

Why are we such poor judges of human nature, of other people though we like to pretend we can tell character at a glance, by instinct?

Why do we say things we don't mean? When we are embarrassed when we are angry, when we are nervous? Why do we get into such jams? Why, just for a change, don't we do the right thing, just by accident?

Why do we worry? We know it doesn't do the least good, then why do we do it?

Why are we peevish when we are tired, when we are getting a cold? ... Why is it that when we scratch beneath the surface of healthy nature, we come upon so many beetles and bugs and other wriggling creatures?

And why DON'T we learn from experience? People say we do, but if we do, then why do we make the same silly mistakes over and over again?

Tell me that. Tell me a lot of other things. Explain a few of these puzzles that keep coming up and coming back.

And will we be happier when we do Grow Up—and we never make a mistake—and our tongues never get us into trouble—and we understand everything—we are always calmly at peace in this most distracting world?

I'll answer that one question, at least. . . . I don't think we WILL be any happier. If that ever comes to pass, if we ever do Grow Up, life will be monotonous and dull and we'll not be as happy as we expect to be. We'll always know better, but we'll always be getting into difficulties.

Recalling the place that "the liberator" held in the esteem of American statesmen of his own day, the NEW YORK EVENING POST-GAZETTE says: "Henry Clay, Daniel Webster and other leaders paid tributes to him while he lived. The Marquis de Lafayette presented him with Washington's portrait and a lock of his hair. Of him it was said: 'Napoleon conquered 70,000 square leagues; Bolivar liberated 1,500,000.' Bolivar's success came at the sacrifice of his personal fortune and his health. He died at the comparatively early age of 47, after a life that has seldom been equaled for accomplishment. His military exploits were many and glorious; he refused dictatorships and long-continued terms in office. At one time, he said: 'The continuation of authority in the same person has frequently proved the undoing of democratic governments.' His were the ideals which appeal to Americans. The nations which he established as republics are monuments to his memory."

Speaking for a better understanding of the place of Bolivar in history, the ATLANTA JOURNAL remarks that "certainly almost every South American schoolchild is familiar with the significance of George Washington, yet Simon Bolivar, who rather aptly has been called the Washington of the continent, hardly enjoys among us the recognition which his extraordinary career merits." Reviewing his history, The Journal says: "He is the unchallenged hero of South American independence. His administrative and military ascendancy lasted only about eighteen years, but in that time he contrived to free Venezuela and New Granada, from which the republic of Great Colombia was formed. As first president of the republic he guided it through the critical formative years analogous to the terms served by Washington as first President of the United States. From the nation which he fashioned came Ecuador, Colombia, Venezuela, and ultimately, Panama. But his restless enterprise did not cease there. He drove royal armies from Peru, and gave to Bolivia, named in his honor, its first constitution. When his deeds are considered, it is regrettable that he is not more widely studied as an exemplary patriot of the new world."

Finding significance in the unveiling at the present time of a statue to Henry Clay at Caracas, a gift from the United States of America to the United States of Venezuela, the DETROIT FREE PRESS remarks: "Clay's passion for freedom carried him to the point of pleading on the floor of congress on American intervention in the Greek war of independence. The speech in which he made this plea is one of the most impressive assemblages of words in the language; but it overlooked the pertinent fact that the struggle in Greece was none of our business. The South American republics were just finding their destiny when Clay was at the height of his power in this country. They naturally became the beneficiaries of his oratory. The statue presented to Venezuela is a graceful recognition of Venezuela's courtesy in giving a statue of General Simon Bolivar to the United States in 1921. Such tangible expressions of fraternity among the countries of America can hardly fail to bear good fruit."

Similarly, the ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH holds that "to the South American, Clay is the father of Pan-Americanism, the flaming Northern advocate of liberty on the Southern continent. This side of Clay's fame, relatively unknown in this country," continues The Post-Dispatch, "is revived with the unveiling of the statue in his honor at the capital of Venezuela." In these days, when the United States is pressing every effort to dispel suspicion and misunderstanding in that quarter, it is heartening to know that Henry Clay's statue will stand on South American soil as a permanent emissary of our historic good will to our southern neighbors."

"No more inspiring story of a great patriot and an unselfish as well as a far-seeing statesman," according to the HUMBOLDT TIMES, "has ever been told than that of Simon Bolivar. Without the sturdy citizenry of Anglo-Saxon steadiness to support him, as Washington had, Bolivar performed prodigies of valor, but greater even than his military record were his plans for forming a great united group of Spanish-speaking Americans—a United States of South America, and the foundations of states which he laid still persist, although the union of which he dreamed has never been consummated. North America can well join in honoring the name of the great Southern Liberator."

To the credit of Bolivar the FORT WORTH RECORD-TELEGRAM places the facts that "he introduced the first practical idea of self-government" into his part of the world, that he "survived the experiment," and that "he is being honored 100 years after he died." The NEW YORK SUN points out that, although he was "of a wealthy patrician family," he "marshaled and led the poorly equipped and often ragged and half-starved forces of revolutionaries." The BOSTON TRANSCRIPT states that "his name is a symbol of continental redemption, a rallying cry for liberty with order." The NEW YORK EVENING POST concludes: "An empire was never his goal. He would have conquered a continent only to give it freedom."

His fame has increased with the years," according to the SAN ANTONIO EXPRESS, "which continues: 'He deservedly ranks with Washington, Hidalgo, Sucre and San Martin—who freed Argentina and Chile—as an outstanding leader in the New World's struggles for political independence.'"

THE WORLD AND THE MUD PUDDLES

NO TIME FOR SPEECH.

The University of California Football Team was beaten one Saturday this fall by a score of 74 to 0. The winning team was that of the University of Southern California. It was bad medicine and the Northern chaps said some very nasty things about the scholarship and sportsmanship of the Southern lads. They even said that they had been defeated by the "best professional football team in America." There is one thing that stands out in this mess.

It is this: The only time that accusations of this kind should be aired is after winning a game; or after the season is over. It just isn't the loser's turn to speak.

If Berkeley had any charges to make about "professionalism," they should have been made at the start of the season; or after the season was washed up. The team on the wrong end of a 74-to-0 score just isn't in a position for conversation. A licking like this should be taken like a toast to the President of the United States—standing and in silence.

SEVEN MAJOR ACHIEVEMENTS

To have discovered that there is an eternal difference between right and wrong.

To have pledged one's life loyalty to the right as opposed to the wrong.

To have enthroned the spiritual interests of life above the physical.

To have dedicated one's life to ideals that can endure defeat.

To have made a personal acquaintance with God.

To have found a life work we can respect and give the best to.

Eisteddfod Is Fine Success

Many Take Part In Musical And Literary Contests

D. O. DAVIES IS
DAY'S CHAIRMAN

Continuing a pleasant custom of many years standing, the First Congregational Church held its twenty-sixth annual eisteddfod on Christmas Day, sessions being held in the afternoon and evening, with a crowded house greeting both sessions.

This year's eisteddfod provided the adjudicators with some real work, so close were the competitors in the various events. In many cases a decision as to which was first was absolutely impossible and the prize was divided. In others the second winner would be just a shade below first. The result was a keenly contested eisteddfod, full of friendly rivalry, and productive of some singing and speaking that rivals anything in years.

Officials Competent
A poor official can mar an eisteddfod, or a good official can make an eisteddfod and the officials this year were men of ability, impartial and keenly alive to the fact that their adjudications were being followed closely by the audience. Prof. Alan B. Davis, director of the Westminster College Conservatory of Music adjudicated the musical competitions, and W. B. Jones, business manager of the Druid, and bureau manager of the Pathe Company in Pittsburgh, was the adjudicator of the literary efforts. Both men were eminently satisfactory.

The chairman of the day was former councilman D. O. Davies, with Rev. Rees T. Williams, pastor of the First Congregational Church acting as conductor of both sessions. The soloists of the day were Harry Evans and George Anthony, both well known musicians, with Mrs. John M. Evans as the official accompanist. Secretaries of the eisteddfod were Miss Melvina Davies and Thomas D. Thomas, with John C. Williams as treasurer.

Afternoon Session
The eisteddfod opened at 2:00 in the afternoon with the competitions of the younger children coming first. Gradually the competitions included young men and women, with the adult competitions featuring the evening session. The first competition of the day was for children under six years, the solo "Luther's Cradle Song." First prize in this was divided between Eleanor Mae McKibben and Frances Jean Turner. Second prize was divided between Mary Ruth Crawford Turner and Jean Crawford.

The recitation for children under six, "Dance Little Baby" was won by Thelma Frey, with Gloria Dean second and Frances Jean Turner, third.

"Trusting Jesus" a solo for children under ten won by Lavinia Mae Thomas of Lorain, O., with Betty Hughes finishing second.

The recitation for children under ten "Greatness" was won by Betty Fowler with Elaine Keefe second. Harry Jones won the solo for children under 15 years, "Open Your Heart To Jesus" with Joan Lawton second.

In the violin solo for children under seventeen, "Trauerlied" first prize was won by Anna Maxine Kennedy, with second prize divided between Harold A. Matthews and Thomas Evans.

"Morning" a soprano solo was won by Catherine Lewis and Mrs. Morris Jones, the prize being divided.

The recitation for children under 12, "Bud Discusses Cleanliness" was won by Betty Jane Cope, with Cecilia Turner and Rosetta Trehanre dividing second.

The pianoforte solo, "Tarantelle" for children under seventeen, was won by Anna Mae Smith, second prize being divided between Elmer Frey and M. Jones.

The recitation for children under sixteen, "Cant" was won by Frances Cope, second prize being won by Beatrice Taylor.

The chief competition of the afternoon session, the children's chorus for boys and girls under six ten years was won by "Our Gang" with Miss Ethel Thomas conducting.

Evening Session
The first competition of the evening session was the tenor solo "When Song Is Sweet" and was won by Daniel Hughes, Jr.

The open English recitation "The Last Hymn" was a divided prize. Mrs. Francis Cope and James G. Davies, dividing honors.

The prize for the Welsh solo for persons over fifty, "Y Delyn Aur" was won by Mrs. Morris Jones, second prize being divided by Morris Jones and Richard Thomas.

The impromptu reading was won by Evan Hopkins.

The open Welsh recitation, "Traneth Wedi'r Farn" was won by Mrs. D. W. Thomas.

The prize for the best last line of a limerick was won by Rev. Reese T. Williams.

In the tenor-baritone duet, "Open the Gates of the Temple" the prize was divided between Tom Francis and Daniel Hughes; Howard Gilmore and Charles Duff; and Evan Hopkins and Edward Gatrall.

An original oration upon Hon. James J. Davis was won by Griffith Thomas.

The chief choral of the day, a mixed chorus "Pierce Was The Billow" was won by the Old Timers Chorus directed by Griffith Thomas.

During the sessions the soloists of the day, Harry Evans and George Anthony interspersed some splendid numbers. At the close of the day Prof. Alan B. Davis congratulated Mrs. Evans, the accompanist of the day upon her work and expressed his pleasure at the splendid competition offered.

Sing Around Huge

Californians Hold Party In National Park At Feet Of Giant Sequoia

GENERAL GRANT NATIONAL PARK, Cal., Dec. 25.—Around a giant Sequoia tree that was a veteran of the forest ages before the herald angels sang over Judea, a group of Californians gathered in this park yesterday to observe Christmas.

Towering 264 feet above the earth and measuring more than 40 feet in diameter, the "nation's Christmas tree," as it has been named, formed the setting for a widely observed ceremony of peace and good will.

Each year on this date hundreds from central California gather to commemorate the Nativity with messages of cheer and songs and pantomime.

Scientists say the tree is the world's largest living thing and that it is at least 5,000 years old.

A message from President Hoover was read by O. S. Hubbard, superintendent of school in Fresno. The message said:

"Christmas is the children's day and older folk can enter into its joys only when led by their hands."

Another message, from Gov. C. C. Young, was read.

Guy C. Hopping, assistant superintendent of Sequoia and General Grant National Parks, welcomed the gathering. There was an invocation by a minister and a tableaux by children.

British Government Engineer Killed In Clash With Rebellious Villagers

REBELS SUFFER HEAVY LOSSES

(International News Service)

LONDON, Dec. 26.—Protracted rioting broke out today at Weyma in the Tharawaddy district of Upper Burma, India, where rebellious villagers murdered Fields Clark, a government engineer, and engaged in sharp and bloody fighting with military police.

Central News dispatches from Rangoon reported four military police killed in the clash and many wounded, including the captain of the force. The rebels were driven into the hills after sustaining severe losses, the dispatches said.

An exchange telegraph message from Rangoon said that twenty of the rebels had been killed so far in the disorders. British troops were using machine-guns in an effort to rout the rioters from their entrenchments in the hills. The authorities were reported finding it extremely difficult to suppress the rebellion owing to the wild nature of the country.

Cognizant of the grave situation fast developing in that remote region, the government is rushing reinforcements to the disturbed locality. The second battalion of the 15th Punjab regiment and a company from the 4th Buffs regiment are already enroute from the nearest military posts.

Trouble has been brewing in the Tharawaddy sector for some time, with native opposition to tax levies becoming daily more pronounced. The first uprising occurred several days ago, when natives in a number of villages rebelled and killed the local officials. They looted railroad depots and postal stations. In a resultant clash with constabulary, ten persons were killed.

Says 8 Per Cent
Are Color Blind

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 26.—Color blindness as a racial trait may be even more prevalent than is usually supposed, Dr. Milton Metfessel, head of the department of psychology of the University of Southern California, revealed in a lecture before the academy of the county Optometrists association.

Earlier calculations of this optical phenomenon were from 3 per cent to 5 per cent of the total population. Recent tests, Dr. Metfessel said, reveal a total of 8.2 per cent, largely among the male sex.

Green blindness, he pointed out, is the most common color deficiency, adding that color blindness is now known to be hereditary and is not correctable.

Almira Home Has Fine Christmas

Splendid Dinner, Hosts Of Visitors And A Christmas Dinner Marks The Day

Christmas, what a wealth of meaning the word has, and it was rich in meaning to the forty three aged ladies who are residents of the Almira Home.

Christmas eve was made merry for the women by the carol singing of the First Presbyterian church junior choir, under the direction of Thomas H. Webber, Jr. Then Christmas morning the day was ushered in with every member of the large family receiving lovely remembrance gifts from family and friends.

The dining room of the Home was the center of attraction Christmas, with its large tree, beautifully trimmed and brilliantly lighted, this being through the thoughtfulness of the A. B. D. Girls of the First Presbyterian church. The dinner table was beautifully centered with roses, these being the gift of the Brothers Sisters. The turkey, about which the menu for the day was built, was the gift of the Womans club, and it was served, deliciously roasted with all the trimmings that go to make up an excellent Christmas dinner.

A crate of oranges was the gift of Miss Blanche Davis, of the Davis Shoe Company, while Thomas Elliott of East Wallace avenue brought a crate of oranges and a box of apples to add to the festivity of the day.

The close of the day saw a lot of tired, but happy aged ladies, who range in age from 68 to 97, the oldest being Miss Anna Nesbitt.

Those who were unable to leave their rooms had their Christmas dinner served to them there, but the ones who were well gathered in the dining room. Throughout the day there were visitors constantly coming and going at the Home, wishing the residents and those who look after them a most Happy Day.

Warren Butcher

Butcher Will Recover From Bullet Wounds At Hands Of Bandit Gang

(International News Service)
WARREN, Ohio, Dec. 26.—Police today were seeking a gang of "handkerchief" bandits who shot Solomon Schultz, 55, a butcher during a holdup of his meat market here.

Surgeons at City hospital said Schultz would recover from the bullet wound received when he attempted to resist the bandits' demands in his third holdup during the past three months.

Two bandits, their faces masked with handkerchiefs, lined customers in the store against the wall and demanded the day's receipts of Schultz. When the butcher attempted to run through a door in the rear of the store, one of the gunmen emptied his revolver at Schultz. One of the bullets lodged in his back.

Both bandits fled without attempting to rob the cash register after the shooting.

Girl, 13, Baffles
Bandit In Holdup

YONKERS, N. Y., Dec. 26.—The bandit got away—but it was a moral victory for 13-year-old Josephine Albadello.
Christmas morning a man without a hat or coat but wearing a sweater entered the grocery store of Stephen Zaccio, Josephine's brother-in-law, and bought a nickel cigar. Josephine was alone in the store.

The man made a motion toward his hip pocket as though to draw a pistol and then demanded money.

He opened the cash register. All that was there was the nickel he had just paid for the cigar.

He took it. His glance rested upon a tin box beside the cash register and he snatched at it. The girl screamed for help and fought with the man. There was $200 in the box, but so furiously did the child fight that the robber was able only to get $20 of it.

He escaped. "But he wouldn't leave," the girl told police, "if his sweater, which I was hanging on to, hadn't torn."

Presenters Are Made
From Old Roof Of
U. S. White House

Ash Trays And Jewel Cases Are Given By President
Hoover

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—Ash trays and jewel cases fashioned from wood taken from the White House roof when it was remodeled two years ago, were presents to the White House personnel by President and Mrs. Hoover as Christmas presents. Accompanying each gift was the following verse written by Mrs. Hoover:

A pine tree on the hills of Maryland—
—through
Many summers' heats and winters' snows,
Felled, carted, watered, sawn and
And then a century buried deep
Within the White House walls—
Unseen, unsung, but one of myriads
Holding firm together.
The storied structure,
Until a few came and replaced
Steel for wood.
Then months upon the dump, the Dump cart actually arrived for one last ride—
And then a rescue. Now here I rest upon your desk for short space, until—the waste basket
And the fire.
Then once again I'll go—free smoke before free wind—to touch again
the hills of Maryland.

Market Session
Today Is Slow

Professionals Turn To Selling
Side Of Market During Day

By W. S. COUSINS,
International News Service
Financial Editor.

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—A slight improvement in the copper, oil, amusement and specialty stocks, inactivity of the rails and a dull and heavy tone in the utilities were the principal features of a slow and meaningless session of the stock market today. Buying demand for some of the leaders was so small that in some cases stock dropped off a point or more between sales, while meagre offerings accounted for similar upturns in other sections of the list.

After a fruitless effort to push ahead the best-known utility stocks and specialties, the professionals turned to the selling side of the market, throwing overboard some fairly large blocks of U. S. Steel, Consolidated Gas, Sears Roebuck, Nash Motors and other favorites. The market turned reactionary at the beginning of the fourth hour, and losses of 1 to 4 points were opened up in the active shares.

Prediction of a price of 11 cents a pound for copper early in the new year, against a present price of 9 cents for the low-price producers, stimulated a better demand for the well-known copper stocks. Anaconda, sold above 29 for a recovery of 3 1-4 points from the low of the week. General Motors and Standard Oil of N. J. led a feeble rally in their respective groups and Eastman Kodak moved up 5 points to 152.

Says Hard Work Plenty Of Meat Gives Long Life

B. Frank, 75 Years Old,
Hands Out Some Timely Advice

By ARTHUR B. DONEGAN
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 26.—If anyone in the audience has a desire to live to be 75 years old, pick up a 196-pound barrel of flour under each arm and carry them down stairs, lift a barrel of water with the teeth and jaw, or perform similar feats, let him step forward and listen to the advice of B. Frank Stence.

B. Frank recently celebrated his 75th birthday anniversary. Basking in the congratulations of friends, Stence recalled for a puny generation the good old days when men were men—at least when men like Stence were men.

Former baker, boxer and wrestler, Stence today is regarded as one of the strongest men of his age in the country.

"Plenty of meat and real hard work did it," he says. "Up until I was 65 years old," he continued, "I ate meat like a lion. I turned up my nose at fresh vegetables and fruit."

But he began to get along in years, so he toned down the meat diet. On the morning of his 75th birthday anniversary, for example, he ate a light breakfast of three biscuits, grape juice and a cup of hot coffee.

But plenty of meat and hard work do the trick, he insists.

"I wouldn't like to perform any feats of strength right now," he said, "because I'm getting on in years. But if I had to defend myself I feel certain there are few men who could get the better of me."

Five feet eight inches tall, weighing 290 pounds, Stence is still a "hard" man.

It all began, he explains, when he ran a bakery here. In those days, part of his program of exercise was to pick up a 196-pound barrel of flour under each arm and carry them down to the cellar where they were stored. Another favorite exercise was to clamp his teeth over the rim of a barrel of water, push his chin against it and raise the barrel in the air.

And for light exercise, he would clasp his hands in front of him and grin while eleven men, tugging at each arm, tried to separate the hands.

Stence smiled as he recalled lack-ling a grizzly bear on display in a carnival and putting the bear on his back after a short tussle. Those were the days, he mused, when he could, and did, lift 1,054 pounds frequently.

"Don't sleep too much, breathe deeply always, get plenty of hard work and eat meat," said he flexing his biceps. "That's the stuff to make anyone a strong man."

Remote control apparatus with which army engineers had been experimenting was ruined. The loss in radio equipment alone was estimated at a half million dollars.

Gets Patent After Three Year's Wait

Beaver Falls Man Secures Rights On Car For Amusement Rides

(Special To The News)
WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 26.—After a wait of over three years, Harry G. Travers of Beaver Falls has again been granted the patent rights in a novel invention, a car for amusement rides, according to an announcement by the United States patent office.

Travers filed his original application for the patent rights to the car March 19, 1925 and the rights were granted May 21, 1929. Before that date, however, on October 27, 1927, Travers filed another application, and this second request has now been granted with an allowance of seven of the claims which were set forth.

Travers' invention is described by the patent office as follows:

In a passenger car for amusement rides, a body arranged with a seat, a back rest for the seat adapted to be tilted rearward and normally urged to back supporting position and releasable means to retain the back rest in back supporting position, and adapted to be released to permit the seat back to be fitted backward and a passenger in the car assume a backward reclining position.

The Beaver Falls inventor has not yet assigned his car for amusement rides to any firm or individual.

A Doll? Not For H. Hoover, 3d

President's Grandson Hands
It Back To Santa; "It Must Be For Sister"

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—Santa Claus made a poor first impression on Herbert Hoover III.

He handed that young man a doll from the top of his back and had it handed right back to him.

"You must have meant that for my baby sister," said young Herbert, 3, politely, but coldly.

"You are right," said Santa, his voice faintly resembling that of Lawrence Ricey, one of the president's secretaries. Thereupon Herbert was given a railway train and his ideas of Santa Claus judgment began improving.

The largest fireplace in the White House is in the state dining room. It was from that one that Santa Claus came.

Herbert Hoover III and Peggy Ann, 5, the grandchildren of President and Mrs. Hoover, were having breakfast with their grandparents when he arrived. Joan, one year old, occupied a crib next by.

It was hard for even the President and Mrs. Hoover to believe it was really Santa when he popped out from behind the evergreens which screened the huge fireplace. On his back was a sack filled with toys.

Amid squeals of delight, he unstopped his sack and opened it. From its deep recesses came the things that the two older children had written for. Mr. and Mrs. Hoover set back and enjoyed it all.

The White House until near the middle of the day was turned over to the young Hoovers. No effort was made to keep them from running toy trains across the blue room, where the president always receives visiting celebrities, or putting dolls to bed under the great crystal chandeliers of the east room.

In front of the White House during the morning the Marine band gave a concert of Christmas carols and hymns. After it was over President and Mrs. Hoover came out on the portico to thank Taylor Branson, the leader.

The Hoovers took time early Christmas evening to meet a group of newsmen who had come here from many states in a yearly pilgrimage. The delegation presented him with a model of a Napoleonic coach, made by the craftsmen guild.

He "kissed" the President.

While the president and Mrs. Hoover were almost mobbed by the eager children, crowding to shake their hands, one of the boys who had talked with him before said:

"Excuse me, Mr. President, but did you ever sell newspapers? I am just kidding, that's my way."

The president replied: "I enjoy it. There are too few in the world who can laugh."

With the president and Mrs. Hoover at Christmas dinner were Allan, home from Harvard for the holidays, and Mrs. Herbert Hoover, Jr., who canceled arrangements for joining her husband in Asheville for the day. She planned to go to him after the festivities at the White House.

Christmas night the chief executive sat down to another big dinner with the members of his official family. All cabinet members and their families were the guests.

The White House Christmas set the pace for the rest of Washington. Cabinet members, senators, representatives and plain citizens recognized the day as Santa's own and sat in quiet contemplation while youngsters enjoyed the presents he brought.

Old Man Weather Cuts Capers In '30

Started On New Year's At High Temperature, Set Many Records

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 26.—The old saw about talking of the weather when every other topic is exhausted simply didn't hold good in the year 1930, for Old Man Weather forced his way into front page headlines a record-breaking number of times in the last twelve months. He seems to have gone on a spree last New Year's Eve from which he never recovered, and he kept the mercury dizzy all year whizzing up and down to set new highs and new lows, mostly highs.

Remember last New Year's Day, when the temperature registered between 46 and 56 degrees all day? But that was nothing to February, Plain Dealer clippings of Feb. 3 bear the headline "400 stand in rain to watch ice boat race." On Feb. 23 the Old Man went completely haywire while firemen fought 111 grass fires, golfers got in their first spring game, and all previous February records were broken as the mercury jumped to 72.2 degrees.

March went by without any spectacular records, but headlines of April 11 report premature summer with a temperature of 82 degrees, higher than any April 11 in Cleveland weather history. Downtown office thermometers that day registered as high as 90 and 94 degrees. Families went picnicking, while the children went swimming.

Early in June came the first days of that dry, suffocating summer. On June 5 and 6 pavements buckled under the intense heat, pedestrians were overcome, river traffic was tied up, and the first prayers for rain in 1930 were recorded.

Most of the summer was like that if you remember, with another "high" on July 19, when the mercury hit 95.3 degrees, hottest day in four years and the hottest July 19 in weather history here. Before summer was over the trees were bare. Yellow and brown leaves were ankle-deep on the sidewalk. The water shortage gripped the suburbs, and householders sat on their front porches, murmuring maledictions while their green lawns cooked into dull brown.

Still being contrary, the fate that rules the weather sent down the first snowfall at the early date of Oct. 18. After the cold came that belated Indian summer you recall.

That passed and Thanksgiving came in deep drifts of snow, frozen rain and bitter, midwinter weather. People talked about an early winter after a hot summer and settled down to hibernate. Then, blooey, away went the snow and the weatherman said for Christmas, "Warmer and rain today or tomorrow."

The Parent Problem

by GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Parents May Overcome Hazards Of Vacations By Providing Program

Home From School And Restless, Child Needs Special Care At Christmas Season, Says Dr. Myers

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.,
Head Division Parental Education,
Cleveland College, Western Reserve University.

Christmas holidays bring new problems to us parents. School children are at home. Their presence for ten days often adds to family confusion. After a day or two they may be very restless, not knowing what to do with themselves. Inevitably there is at this time more contention and quarreling.

We want those old enough to be out-of-doors, but when they are, new hazards face them. If there is ice or snow many will be tempted to take their sleds into the streets or to coast from the sidewalks into the street. When we are wise we bring pressure to bear on our police department to rope off some streets for play and then see to it that our children do not expose their lives to traffic dangers elsewhere.

Let us provide a program for the holidays, indoors and out—for hiking parties, skating, skiing, coasting where it is safe. When we are welcome let us join our children, even at some personal sacrifice. In the house we can provide informal parties with group games and opportunities for constructive and creative work. We want our children to attract their playmates to our home. We need, therefore, to learn to adapt ourselves to the normal noises incident to such wholesome fun and recreation—no small task.

Our children's health is more endangered at this time. Most eat sweets too freely, with digestive disorders, following and increasing number of colds. By proper guidance we can teach the older ones with colds to keep their distance, not to enter their neighbors' houses then or when they seem at all indisposed. Contagious diseases are readily spread during the holidays and as a rule they are most infectious at the onset. Although it sometimes is a delicate matter, we shall try to keep from our house other children who have colds or slight illness. We can do much to encourage caution in such matters in our neighbors by exercising due vigilance in keeping our children when they have small ailments from our neighbors' houses.

Picture shows are more dangerous to health during the holidays than at any other time since more children go then, and from wide areas. Although always a dangerous place for pre-school children, they are peculiarly hazardous at this time. Let the older children know exactly how many shows they are allowed during the entire period; better not make the number larger. When they contract contagions there they immediately expose the younger ones at home.

Work out for the older children a definite program of home responsibilities in such a way that they will know when their jobs are finished and be able to plan their play. Encourage them to find some time to read, and surely a period each day for quiet and relaxation for their good and for the comfort of the rest of the family.

School children who have rather rigidly followed a routine or regular bed time will profit by some privileges of staying up nights, provided they are allowed to sleep late in the morning. Nevertheless, the family happiness will be most secure if there is not much variation from the regular program.

Says Civilization Is Confronted By Era Of Dark Ages

Sir Henry Thornton Says
Caucasian Race Must Wake Up

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 26.—A warning that, unless the Caucasian race wakes up to conditions now obtaining in Europe, culture and civilization may again slip into a dark ages era, was sounded by Sir Henry W. Thornton, president of the Canadian National railways, in an address before the Franklin Institute here last night.

"There is weakening of orderly Caucasian control and the awakening of inexperienced and uncultured hordes in the world today," he said. "It may be that a barbarian is knocking at the frontiers of European civilization, and in the invasion, should it come, culture and civilization may perhaps slip again into an era of dark ages to resume only in some subsequent century its painful climb toward Olympus."

"The great war took a heavy toll in blood, brains, wealth and influence from European nations," he said. "Some of these nations, which prior to the war represented responsible empires, are now irresponsible fragments. The ravages of battle have robbed the Caucasian race of the flower of its youth. That, in itself, represents a tremendous liability."

"The restraining hand of world discipline is weakening. Already serious influences of a magnitude not to be despised seek to overthrow those finer traditions to which we owe allegiance and hold to be sound. The struggle of nations for industrial supremacy, which today has replaced the struggle for military leadership, also constitutes a real menace."

More than sixty college athletes who won letters in their undergraduate days are now presidents of universities or colleges, the survey showed. And most of these were awarded their letters in football. Baseball ran a close second, with basketball, track, rowing, wrestling and tennis bringing up the rear.

Questionnaires were sent to 417 colleges and universities and 299 replies were received. The survey disclosed that the presidents who replied, ninety-seven are alumni of the institutions over which they now preside.

Amazing Variety Of Freak Events In Hoosier Country

By JOHN A. CEJNAR
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 22.—Truth still remains stranger than fiction a survey of recent Hoosier news has disclosed.

Freak happenings in Indiana have ranged all the way from the perforation of a speeding automobile by a falling meteor to the unearthing of a bottle of prewar stuff by a laborer digging a trench.

At Columbus, Mrs. Martin Neitrop had been treated successfully for 15 years for neuritis. Then an X-ray examination disclosed that the pain in her right hip was caused by a needle embedded in the hip joint.

Near Hammond, Maxine Ruth Flick, 5, who had been suffering from an earache for three years, was found to have an imitation pearl and glass diamond lodged near the drum of her left ear.

At Calumet City doctors found a shoe button in the nose of 11 year old Alice Chudy. The obstruction had been in the nose for eight years.

Near Logansport, Dr. C. E. Mummet, veterinarian, called to examine the body of a valuable cow belonging to Farmer Asa Shideier found that her death was due to a four-inch piece of baling wire which had pierced the center of the heart.

In Indianapolis Mary Helen Haviland, 14 months old baby, can yodel.

At Wheatfield 2 year old William Graham, tried to play with a rattlesnake, was bitten and died.

and Mrs. Floyd Neff moved to Fort Wayne taking Rin along. Rin promptly deserted and arrived at the Neff place at Logansport three days later, footsore, tired and hungry, but delighted.

"Uncle" Bill Davidson fishing in the White River near Bicknell landed a 43 pound catfish.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Jones at Connersville enjoy a tame cardinal which eats at the family table and which brings worms in payment for its meals. This bird also uses soap according to Jones, when taking its daily bath.

Dickie, a 42 year old parrot belonging to Mrs. Hattie Morrill in Indianapolis saved his mistress from possible death by crying out "Help!" when fire broke out at night. Firemen who put out the flames later found Dickie lying on his back in his cage overcome by smoke. He was revived by artificial respiration.

While a large sycamore log was being sawed at the L. Louck sawmill near Portland the saw struck a horseshoe imbedded in the heart of the 20 inch tree. It was believed some one had hung this horseshoe over the limb of the tree perhaps 75 years ago.

A. O. Catterson was cutting down a shade tree at Noblesville when his saw ran into an eight penny nail imbedded in the heart of the 14 inch tree.

At New Albany, Louis Beal grew a 90 foot pumpkin vine with 65 pumpkins on it, in a sawdust dump. The largest pumpkin weighed 33 pounds.

A 3 pound radish was exhibited at Shelbyville by Farmer Al Spidell.

Farmer F. M. Shepard of Bruceville scored with a twin pumpkin.

Farmer William Coan, exhibited an 8½ pound turnip at Freelandville.

Head Of Animal Industry Gives Pointers For "Butchering" Season

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Dec. 26.—The brine of sweet pickle method for curing meat has consistently given better results than the dry curing method in test at the Florida Experiment station, according to Dr. A. L. Shealy, head of the Animal Husbandry department.

To produce good sugar cured hams the hog should be slaughtered in the proper manner. It should be well bled, preferably without stunning. The animal should be scalded immediately in water that is between 145 to 155 degrees F. If the water is too hot the hair will set and be difficult to remove.

As soon as the carcass is cleaned it should be cut open and the internal organs removed. Then the dressed carcass should be cut into shoulders, loins, sides or middlings, and hams.

As soon as each piece is cut it should be covered with a thin layer of salt. If the meat is not to be put in cold storage it should be kept over night in the coldest place on the farm, and then placed in the pickling mixture. If cold storage is used the meat may be put in the pickling mixture at once. Dr. Shealy recommended cold storage for most places in Florida.

The sweet pickling solution used at the station is made by mixing 14 pounds of salt, 3 pounds of brown sugar (or 3 pints of syrup), 3 ounces of saltpeter, and 6 gallons of water in a tub or barrel. The meat is packed with the skin side down, in the solution. The hams and shoulders are placed in the bottom. A side is left in the solution for two days for each pound, and a ham or shoulder three or four days for each pound weight.

The meat is then taken out and smoked over hickory wood. It is then wrapped in paper, and put in cheesecloth bags. The bags are covered with a thick whitewash made of slaked lime, and hung in a cool place.

When Bird Flies In

CHEHALIS, Wash., Dec. 25.—Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Donahue had a dinner visitor, but it didn't stay to become the principal dish.

A China pheasant flew into the dining room through a closed window, looked around and flew out another.

Both windows were broken but the pheasant was not hurt.

Lightning struck the weather bureau at Royal Center and a meteor crashed through the hood and radiator of a car being driven near Crawfordsville by Lawrence Swank 17.

Aside from this, all is quiet in the Hoosier country.

We have been seized in the throes of an economic depression, formidable in its dimensions and threatening in outlook; from all sides come pertinent and anxious questions: How can such economic depressions possibly be averted, what will cure the present conditions, when will the depression end? All these are vital questions and it would be of interest to know: Does the Bible, mankind's Book of guidance, have anything to say upon the subject? Can the rich light of Jewish Lore

House Labor Chairman Would Try To Unearth Unemployment Causes

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—Such a case as that of Chairman William F. Kopp of the house of representatives labor committee, an Iowa lawmaker, is rare in Washington.

Congressman Kopp admits that the government's unemployment relief efforts are mighty meaningless, defined in terms of the long run. "We're dealing with symptoms only," he confesses.

"For the moment they rightly claim our whole attention, they are so acute. However, symptoms are superficial. They bespeak an underlying disease. The patient unmistakably has it, whatever it may be. We have seen the same symptoms before. It behooves us to get down to their cause or they will recur. This paroxysm will pass but others will follow unless we find a remedy for the fundamental malady. And the periodic attacks are getting worse. In the entire history of the case the present one is the most violent. There is no certainty that this is not the last time we will be safe in relying upon mere palliatives."

Since congress met, the Washington atmosphere has been surcharged by the launching of vast public improvements, some needed and some not particularly needed—highways for which there is no immediate demand; waterways for which perhaps there will be shipping later; federal buildings which normally would be considered good for another generation; in short, jobs simply for the sake of jobs.

On an enormous scale it is rather reminiscent of an earlier era when the substantial householder made a point of having a pile of wood in his doorway for the chance passing tramp to chop (though the woodbox might be already overflowing) before a plate of food was handed out to him.

Possibly the tramp was safeguarded thus from pauperization.

Yet I recall vaguely suspecting even as a child, that there was a flaw in the arrangement. What I undoubtedly sensed was that, under a fairer system, the tramp probably would not have been a tramp; also that chopping wood, for no more useful purpose than to chop wood on the treadmill, as of yore—non-productive labor, from which economists assure us that human nature revolts, consciously or unconsciously recognizing it as pure waste.

New York's Senator Robert F. Wagner, of unemployment bill fame, blames the government for not having had its woodpile ready when the industrial depression began to manifest itself throughout the land.

That is, he maintains that a fully-formulated program of public improvements ought to be held in reserve all the while, ready to be put into effect on short notice at the first hint of an emergency—an elastic woodpile, adaptable to any situation, and with a personnel to steer all comers to the federal dooryard and set them a-chopping, up to the limit of the dearth of private jobs.

The New Yorker's intentions are first class. Nevertheless I have read the Wagner unemployment bill, all of them, clear through without finding the least suggestion of any curiosity on the senators' part as to the reason why so many men are periodically thrown out of private jobs.

That the old-fashioned "business cycle" still is to be reckoned with seems well established.

Experts doubted this for a while. Business remained at so high a level for so long, following a brief readjustment interval just after the war, that the ablest of them began to believe ancient rules no longer held good.

In 1924 I myself consulted on the subject no less an authority than the then secretary of commerce, Herbert Hoover, and he gave me an interview, actually dictated by his assistant, Edward Eyre Hunt, but approved by the chief.

The business "graph" (such was the forecast) will continue to show a wave, but the extreme crests and deep depressions—the booms and slumps—appear to have been ironed out.

Three years later I asked Joseph S. McCoy, actuary of the treasury, generally considered the greatest statistician in America, "Is today's prosperity to be unending?" "It's unprecedented," answered Actuary McCoy, "hence statistics fail to tell us. They are enlightening only by comparison, and there are none in the past with which to compare the present. Maybe we are living in a new age of the world. Maybe it's a big boom, which will burst. I don't know."

Was it a boom and did it burst? Is what we are experiencing now a deep enough depression in the "graph" to rate as a slump? Congressman Kopp nodded.

"It's the business cycle, indeed," he agreed.

I know a government economist who reasons thus: "We have one captain of industry in America who has piled up a billion in 20 years. He can have done it only through huge profits from the public, low wages to workmen or both."

"That's the country's outstanding case, but there are hundreds of others which differ from it only in degree."

"Speak of it as the cause of hard times and you're termed a Communist."

"Calling names," said Congressman Kopp, "is the most convincing form of argument."

But is there any remedy? "If I knew one," replied the Iowa, "believe me, you'd hear me urging it."

Exhausted Goose, Makes Short Stay

(International News Service)

NEW LONDON, Conn., Dec. 26.—A wild goose, out of a flock headed southward, fell into the door yard of William Eddy, in Quaker Hill district, and lay exhausted until Eddy picked the bird up, and put it into his chicken yard. The bird weighed twelve pounds. For days it appeared satisfied with conditions, and finally departed southward when another flock honked overhead.

Wooden Leg For Girl's Pet Rooster

(International News Service)

EAST HAMPTON, Conn., Dec. 26.—William Clark, the village butcher, consoled his little daughter, Anna, when her pet rooster's leg withered away after being caught in a trap. Clark whittled a leg out of a pair of hickory sticks, and taped it onto the rooster. In a few days the rooster was moving about without a limp and Anna was happy again.

Many Men Of Many Minds

"Brass Tacks" On The Sunday School Lesson

The Golden Text

Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus.—Phil. 2:5.

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

It is inconceivable that the God who makes no two men's fingerprints the same, and who has infinitely varieties of patterns for all His handiwork from snowflakes up to planets, should have but one mold and pattern for man. His crowning creation, Verily, it takes all kinds of people to make a world—many men of many minds. Like the changing colors of a kaleidoscope they pass before us in the lessons we review this Sunday under the title, "The Pattern of Christian Living."

For we have patterns of piety in the pious parents of John the Baptist. Zacharias and Elizabeth were good and godly souls whom God chose out of obscurity to the unique service of preparing "the greatest of them born on women," who, in turn was to prepare the way for the Christ. They were not the first nor the last of obscure parents who by their piety reared children who have become famous beyond their parents.

Mary the mother of our Lord is another of this type of godly piety whom God raised out of obscurity because of her godliness. She is forever the pattern of maternal devotion possessing all of the choicest graces of womanhood.

Simon and Anna, similarly, are types of that great host who through patience and comfort of the Scriptures hope on and on, despite delay, and wait for the consolation of Israel. They are the pure in heart who see God and depart in peace. Simon Peter is of that impetuous

HARRISBURG, Dec. 26.—Dog licenses and tags for 1931, totaling more than 53,000, are now in the hands of county treasurers throughout the commonwealth and can be secured by dog owners, according to the bureau of animal industry, Pennsylvania department of agriculture. The dog law requires that 1931 tags be on dogs by January 15.

No extra time is allowed. After that date it is just as much a violation of the law to allow a dog to be without a 1931 tag as it would be to operate an automobile without a new license on or after January 1, the bureau explained.

HARRISBURG, Dec. 26.—A total of 243 patients suffering or thought to be suffering from mental disturbances were examined in the thirty-seven mental health clinics held in the counties of the State under the jurisdiction of the Bureau of Mental Health, State Department of Welfare, according to a report submitted by Dr. William C. Sandy, director of the bureau.

In addition to the patients examined at the regular clinics, thirty-seven were examined in nine special clinics held in institutions or agencies which arranged special examinations.

Man Who Saw Him Recalls Lincoln At Gettysburg

Dr. S. Z. Sharp Has Vivid Picture Of Great Emancipator

(International News Service)
FRUITA, Colo., Dec. 25.—For 67 years, Dr. S. Z. Sharp, now 95 years of age, has held in his memory a vivid recollection of a tall awkward figure standing on a platform at Gettysburg, Pa., uttering those familiar words "Four score and seven years ago—"

Dr. Sharp, former minister and college president, stood 30 feet away as Lincoln delivered his Gettysburg address. He is one of the few men still alive who actually heard the original speech. His memory of the occasion, he says, is as vivid as though it happened yesterday.

"At the battlefield, which Congress had voted to set aside as a national cemetery," Dr. Sharp said, "a platform about 50 feet long and 30 feet wide, was erected."

"On the west end of this platform were seated Lincoln and some of his cabinet, and Edward Everett, regarded then as one of the greatest orators in America."

"In the middle were seated the governors of 21 Northern states. On the east end there was a choir of twelve singers from Baltimore. Around the platform there were standing about 30,000 persons. A little to the west was a detachment of the regular army with its artillery."

It was in this setting that Dr. Sharp remembers the famous words being spoken. The ceremonies began, he said, with the salute of 21 guns. Everett then arose and spoke for an hour and a half, holding the audience spellbound by the beauty of his oratory.

While Everett was speaking, Dr. Sharp, then 28 years old, was gradually working his way nearer to the platform. At last the oration closed and the president arose to speak.

"He held a piece of paper in his left hand, at which he glanced at times," Dr. Sharp related. "It is said he wrote his address on this paper on the train as he came from Washington. He spoke four minutes by my watch and sat down. "There was no applause. There was a reason. A few rods from where he spoke there were buried the relatives of so many of his audience and he spoke so feelingly of the heroic dead that it had the effect of a funeral sermon and applause would not have been proper. The figure of the president, six feet four inches tall in his stocking feet, broad shouldered and black bearded was indelibly impressed on the listener's memory."

After serving as a teacher for 45 years Dr. Sharp came to Fruita in 1902. He operates a fruit ranch near here.

Says Air Travel Rapidly Nearing Safety Of Rails

Three Hundred Per Cent Increase Of Travel During Year

By LAURENCE DUMOND
International News Service Staff Correspondent

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Dec. 26.—More safety and less cost in air travel has been responsible for a 300 per cent increase in air passenger traffic this year.

That is the opinion of W. L. Hinds, vice-president of one of the big aviation companies in Syracuse. The airplane is rapidly approaching that stage where, in comparison with miles traversed, it can be considered as safe and dependable as the finest trains of our modern railroad era, thinks Hinds.

"There are undoubtedly many factors responsible for this splendid development in passenger air transportation," says Hinds. "Some of it may have been due to economic and business reasons wherein a saving in time was imperative, but on the whole I believe it has been primarily due to two reasons—first, the development of ground and flying aids of a mechanical nature which have been instrumental in eliminating the psychology of fear in flying the public mind, and second the practical efforts made by line operators to bring air transportation charges near the level of the average man's pocketbook."

"The year 1931 opens before us with many other aeronautical developments on the threshold of successful application, all of which are tending to place this new field of transportation on a steadily higher plane of safety and dependability."

"Among other major advancements, I believe, which the near future is going to bring about are a greatly increased number of airports and landing fields, with necessary equipment; better control methods for airplanes in take-offs and landings; the designs and construction of ever larger mail and passenger ships; incorporation of sound-proofing methods for lessening external vibration and noise; and the addition of such other mechanical features as lower landing speeds and higher speed in flight, the latter of which will be made possible by the use of higher-powered motors and perhaps some changes in aerodynamic design in order to lessen wind resistance."

Soviet Workers To Dig Ditches

(International News Service)
MOSCOW, Dec. 26.—Former people, the middle bourgeoisie, who in the last few years were ousted from jobs of any sort in offices directly or indirectly connected with the Soviet government, have now received special dispensation to register on unemployment exchanges and will be in time for menial jobs such as ditch diggers, railroad section hands and car loaders.

The decree granting the declassified elements a right to earn a living affects about 300,000 persons who once held jobs under the Soviets. About 200,000 of them were thrown out of Soviet government offices where they worked as accountants, bookkeepers and office managers. They will not, however, be given the right to belong to trade unions.

School Janitor Woman Of Eighty, Unique In State

Has Spent 35 Years As Custodian Of One School Building

(International News Service)

EAST FOXBORO, Mass., Dec. 26.—Thirty-five years custodian of the Pratt School here during which time she has shoveled more than 639 tons of coal into the building's furnace, is the record of Mrs. Hannah E. Cotton, 80-year-old, who claims to be the only school janitress in the state.

Although well-advanced in years, Mrs. Cotton is still interested in the "job" and intends to hold it down for a good many years to come.

Furthermore, a representative of the State Department of Education has declared the small school building one of the best kept structures throughout the state.

Mrs. Cotton is very active despite her advanced age. Her hair is bobbed in up-to-date fashion and she engages in numerous social and industrial functions in the community.

Almost daily, Winter and Summer, rain or shine, Mrs. Cotton rises at 5 o'clock and begins her duties at the school which is located directly across from her home.

During the Fall and Winter months Mrs. Cotton takes care of the heating system and during the past thirty-five years since the school was built has shoveled an average of thirty tons of coal a year into the furnace. During the summer and school vacation periods Mrs. Cotton is engaged in cleaning and dusting and making any necessary minor repairs.

Mrs. Cotton is a lifelong resident of this section and married a Charles Cotton of New York, who established a steamfitting and plumbing business in Foxboro. At the age of seventy-one he is still actively engaged at his trade.

Bo Broadway by JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

By Central Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—A gentleman by the name of Gattle runs a bauble shop on the Roo de Quince—diamonds and watches and trumpery chains and things. He, like the rest of us here in the Capitol of the Commonwealth, has come under the bane of the Existing Unpleasantness; but, unlike some in the merchandizing game, he's facing the situation in four-square fashion.

Hark to Brother Gattle: "We have had a long, profitable career. We are now able to take our losses out of past profits, not out of present retrenchments. This house has always maintained thirty-five employees. We will continue to keep these persons at the same wage they have always earned. By keeping our share of business going we supply a living to our help."

No sermon can equal the force of a good example.

UNIVERSAL SUCCESS.
Josephine McNamee, the original "radio widow," is authority for the statement that sharing a man with the world is an eight-octave job.

"But I don't mind," she adds, "just so long as I can keep my husband happy and successful. I am always so thrilled when I recall that Graham, who used to walk the New York street, a lonely and forlorn boy, knowing not a soul, now could go all over the country—into any little town, and be known and liked by many as a friend."

Any bird whose wife talks that way about him—and means it—comes pretty darn near being a great big, dazzing, three-cornered success.

BROADWAY HIT.
Vicki Baum, whose "Grand Hotel" is the hit of the Broadway season, is a musician. Back in her pitgall and pinafore days she exhibited a talent for word juggling but when she was married to the Director of the Berlin State Opera she devoted herself to music and her home, forgetting literature.

Britons Give Four Rules In Cancer Fight

Many Questions Answered In New Authoritative Book

By F. A. WRAY International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Dec. 26.—"The Truth About Cancer" is the title of an authoritative book just issued by the British Empire Cancer Campaign.

The book tries to give a clear answer to questions which are causing world-wide concern.

"Is Cancer on the increase?" Most authorities think there is an evidence of an increase in cancer at some sites of the body and a diminution in others.

"Is Cancer hereditary?" So far as is known, the hereditary factor, if any "can be dismissed from our minds without serious consequences."

"Is cancer contagious?" No case has been observed in which the disease has been conveyed from one person to another.

"Does cancer develop in certain houses and localities?" There is no satisfactory evidence that it does.

As regards diet, the book says, "All that can be said that there is no shred of reliable evidence that consumption of or abstinence from any particular article of diet leads to the occurrence of cancer."

Methods of treatment, by surgery or radium, or both, are steadily improving, but at present the only way to reduce the mortality considerably is to induce people to see their doctors at an early stage if they notice something.

The main facts which the public should bear in mind are given as follows:

Cancer is relentless if ignored. In its early stages very often it is painless.

In its early stages it is purely local disease.

The only reliable measures of treatment known at present for cancer are surgical operation and radiation. For complete success these treatments must be extensive and adequate.

Arrange Meeting Of Farm Managers At State College

Will Discuss Vegetable Production At Annual Session

HARRISBURG, Dec. 26.—Superintendents, managers and farm operators of charitable, penal and educational institutions throughout the State are scheduled to meet January 6, 7 and 8 for the Institutional Farmers' Week, to be held at Pennsylvania State College, according to the program which has just been issued and made public today by the Secretary of Welfare, under whose department many of the institutions concerned come for jurisdiction.

This year's Farmers' Week will be the fourth, and the program has been outlined by a committee comprised of representatives of the institutions and of the School of Agriculture of the Pennsylvania State College. The feature subject for consideration will be "Vegetable Crops," the importance of which for institutional consumption has been recognized more each season.

The program will be opened with an address of welcome by Dean R. L. Watts, of the School of Agriculture. Other subjects which will be discussed in addition to the main vegetable topic will be poultry, swine, large and small fruits and dairy products.

Stewards of institutions this year will also be interested in the program since one section will be devoted to the aspects of human nutrition, as it has a bearing on the products of the institutional farms. The subject of human nutrition as applied to the institutions under the jurisdiction of the State Department of Welfare will be discussed by Miss Kathryn A. Pritchett, nutrition consultant of the department.

The Institutional Farmers' Week was developed by R. Bruce Dunlap, who was appointed agriculturist of the Department of Welfare. He, with members of the faculty of the School of Agriculture of Pennsylvania State College, arranged the several days devoted to institutional farm problems and invited institutional officials to attend once a year. The sessions are largely attended now and experts in each field are selected for the major discussions of the topics listed on the programs.

Advocates Putting Women To Work

That declaration was made by Mrs. Alma M. Lee, Cleveland clubwoman and civic worker, when she took the oath of office as the first woman foreman of a Cuyahoga county grand jury.

There are thousands of women in America who have performed the duties of wifehood and motherhood," Mrs. Lee continued. "They are in good health and have good educations. They have an intimate interest in civic affairs and are ideally fitted to hold public office."

Young Criminals Seen As Killers By Frisco Police

Nervous Trigger Finger Of Youthful Bandit Is Responsible

(International News Service)

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Dec. 26.—It's "blazing youth" in California police jargon—"blazing" because most of the gun play among criminals is by the youngsters making their debut on the stage of crime.

The nervous trigger finger of the youthful bandit, in the opinion of Captain of Detectives Charles Dullea of the San Francisco Police Department, exacts a far greater toll of murders and shootings than do the desperate, deliberate killers.

As a result of flaming youth's impulse to "blaze" Capt. Dullea pointed out today more than 50 per cent of California's convicts are still in their twenties, while over 300 are not yet out of the teens.

State statistics show that in Folsom and San Quentin prisons alone there are 295 convicts under 20 years of age, 1,450 between the ages of 20 and 24, and 1,929 between 24 and 29. This gives a total of 3,574 under the age of 29, as compared to the combined total of 7,101 prisoners. One hundred-twenty of the San Quentin inmates are women.

On parole from the two institutions are 2,309 men and women, making 9,410 persons under commitment in the state.

Population of the Preston, Whittier and Ventura reformatories aggregate 1,096, with 1,304 boys and girls on parole from the three correctional schools.

The appalling per cent of youth involved in the state's most desperate crimes, Captain Dullea believes, along with James A. Johnston, State Director of Penology, obviates the immediate need of special intermediate penal institutions for first offenders.

Urge Use Of Riddles On Chicago Crooks

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 26.—The little wooden play blocks and catch riddles which gave Chicago hoodlums so much grief several years ago may be called into use again.

Leading physicians and jurists have joined in advocating the establishment of a psychiatric laboratory at the house of correction, county jail and other penal institutions. They believe such action would help uncover causes of crime and aid judges in fixing punishment.

Addressing a meeting of lawyers and doctors recently, Dr. Harry B. Hoffman, professor at the Rush Medical college said:

"Not one cent has been spent by Chicago or Cook County to determine the causes of crime. We need prevention of crime, not prisons."

Midnight Service Fills Trinity Church

Impressive Service Of Ritual And Song Ushers In The Christmas Day

The largest congregation in the last seven years, or during the time in which accurate records have been kept, attended the Midnight service in Trinity church on Christmas eve. This great gathering of people found the edifice beautifully and strikingly decorated by the Men's club with greens, the red of satin ribbons and poinsettias contrasting brilliantly. Older communicants remarked they had never seen such a profusion of holly, hemlock trees, and southern smilax used in Trinity before.

The long procession of choristers, preceded by crucifer and taper bearers vested in red and white as appropriate to Yule-tide, singing the joyous strains of one of the old carols made all feel at once from the beginning that it was Holy Night. As the service went on this feeling was deepened, until at the close "Silent Night" sung softly, while all knelt, seemed to bring the Christ-child to every heart.

The impressive ceremonial was rendered reverently by the ministers and five of the young men of the Parish, and through and in a chapel conveyed to the eye the meaning of the ritual.

The large choir under the leadership of Paul Browne Patterson, through the "universal art" brought home to every heart the message of the infant Savior to the world. The rendition was of exceptionally fine quality and reflected much credit upon organist and choir.

The rector in a brief message said, "On this anniversary of His birthday, may the Christ-child dwell in our hearts by faith; may He enkindle in our souls the peace and love He came to give and which He alone can bestow." He welcomed most heartily the people of St. Andrew's and St. Luke's and the Rev. Mr. De Caux of Pittsburgh, long a friend of the parish, in New Castle unexpectedly, who took part in the service, and spoke highly of the work of the choir and servers.

Much the same service will be held again next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, when another elaborate, but somewhat different musical program will be given as follows:

Organ prelude—Alleluia brillante—Parker.
Professional—"Oh Come, All Ye Faithful"—J. F. Wade.

Tunic Effects Smartest Trim For Midwinter

By ALICE LANGELIER International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS, Dec. 26.—Tempting tunic effects trim town clothes for smart midwinter wear.

This tunic line is evident and most successful on a black maroon tunic for town wear, with three distinct tiers showing between the pressed-in pleats of the skirt. A white georgette vest is present with detachable cuffs.

For afternoon wear in town comes a tobacco-brown velvet ensemble, with its shaggy three-quarters coat bordered with beige fox fur and the tunic-bloss in beige crepe belted in. The trimming on the blouse is in applied scallops of the material crossing the garment in boero line.

Smartly basqued is a black wool model for town wear with an interesting square line doubled on each hip with belt slipped through and fastened with a bright scarlet buckle. A scarf collar is knotted at the neck and black astrakhan borders the jaunty jacket.

A vivid green velvet coat semi-fitted, covers the hips in cuffed basque lines, covering a dress of creamy white tulle.

Molyneux exploits the deep tunic line on the long skirt yoke for a printed blouse in almond-green crepe de Chine worn with a fine wool skirt showing the deep hip line above the box-pleats.

A two-piece frock comes with comfortable tunic-bloss which nearly covers the hips and is neatly belted in at the waist. Both blouse and skirt fasten at the center front with matching bone buttons.

Build 100 Miles Of Forest Roads

Pennsylvania Spends $200,000 During 1930 For Construction Of Highways

Direction Signs Facilitate Travel Along Trails Over State-owned Preserves

SOMERSET, Pa., Dec. 26.—The State forests of Pennsylvania are being made more easily accessible each succeeding year to greater numbers of persons with the development of forest roads and improved trails. This work is not under the direction of the State Highway Department as is the construction of other highways in the State, but is in charge of the road superintendent of the Department of Forests and Waters.

Many wonderful natural scenic areas in Pennsylvania are scheduled in remote parts of State-owned forests and would be unavailable to any number of persons were it not for the forest roads and State trails maintained by the forest roads superintendent and his crews.

The development of new roads and improved trails constantly makes available additional natural beauty spots in a State nationally known for its scenic grandeur.

2200 Miles in Forests
During 1930 more than 100 miles of State forest roads were constructed. All of these roads can be traveled by automobiles in season. This 100 miles of new roadway opened to general visitation thousands of acres of forest land. In excess of 2200 miles of forest roads are now available in Pennsylvania.

State forest roads are not to be considered a luxury designed primarily for the benefit of roving vacationists, but travel and transportation facilities are indispensable factors in making the State forests profitable from a fiscal standpoint as well as from one purely recreational.

That the main purpose of State forest roads is utilitarian is demonstrated by the building of the 21-mile stretch of the Renovo-Snow Shoe State forest road in Clinton and Centre counties.

This road is practically the only means of access to an area comprising 200,000 acres of State-owned forest land located in that wonderfully scenic area between the Susquehanna River on the north and Beech Creek on the south. This road is also the connecting link between three secondary forest roads with a total length of forty-four miles.

Signs Erected
To facilitate travel direction signs have been erected at all necessary points along forest roads and trails and as a consequence there is little danger of either the motorist or pedestrian losing his way just an ordinary amount of precaution in his ramblings.

A well-defined plan of road and trail construction and maintenance in State forest areas has been developed and is carrying out promises to make available to greater numbers of persons the beauty spots and scenic wonders within the borders of Pennsylvania which heretofore have been available only to the hardy and adventurous few with a penchant for penetrating the unbroken forests.

During 1930 more than $200,000 was spent in building and maintaining roads and trails in the State-owned forests of Pennsylvania.

Youngster Nearly Strangles To Death As Christmas Peanut Lodges In Throat

(International News Service)
WARREN, O., Dec. 26.—Two-year-old James Green—"Jimmy"—to his playmates—is going to take his time before again indulging in a peanut feast.

Midway through a bag of peanuts at his Windham home, Jimmy suddenly stopped chewing, dropped the bag and ran to his mother. His eyes were bulging and his cheeks purple. Choking sounds came from his throat.

Jimmy's parents loaded him into their automobile and raced the twenty miles from Windham to the Warren hospital. Surgeons and nurses looked grave. The lad's breathing grew more feeble.

They placed Jimmy on the operating table under the glare of the surgeon's lamps. Then . . . Jimmy blinked one or twice, gulped convulsively, and smiled broadly as he swallowed the peanut.

Edith, six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Natale, Friendship street, was seriously injured Christmas day when she opened the door of the family automobile while they were riding on the New Wilmington road and fell out. The accident occurred about 1:20 p. m. The little girl was seriously injured, having been injured about the head and receiving contusions of the shoulders, arms and legs.

Following the accident the little girl was removed to the Jameson Memorial hospital, where she is reported to be resting as easily as can be expected considering the nature of her injuries.

To Snap Earth Fifty Miles Up

Automatic Recording Devices To Be Attached To Rockets

(International News Service)
ROSWELL, N. M., Dec. 26.—A glimpse of the earth from 50 miles off in space is what Dr. R. H. Goddard of the Smithsonian Institute hopes to obtain within the next few months.

Dr. Goddard's view of the earth, of course, will be scientific and various, not personal. It will be obtained through means of automatic recording devices which will ride in rockets into the atmosphere 50 miles from the earth.

In a camp near here Dr. Goddard and his assistants are preparing to launch a number of rockets into outer space. The rockets have been perfected by Dr. Goddard over a long period of time.

Atmospheric conditions over New Mexico, led the expedition to establish its camp here.

Automatic recorders to be sent up in the rockets, will carry timing and distance recording devices and a small air chamber to capture a sample of the atmosphere 50 miles up. A small parachute will be released when the rocket bursts, to bring the recording devices back to earth.

The Smithsonian Institute is making the experiments at the suggestion of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, with funds supplied by the late Simon Guggenheim.

American Buyers Are Paying Bills

Credit And Installment Business In United States Is Enormous Figure
Losses Very Small Through Persons Failing To Pay For What They Buy

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—Credit and installment business in the United States is enormous and yet the American people are paying their bills, Edwin B. George, chief of the marketing service division of the commerce department declared today.

A survey conducted by the department showed the annual volume of retail losses, many of which are avoidable, approximate but $200,000,000.

Are Paying Bills

"We can breathe a sigh of relief at the discovery that with all of their open-credit and installment commitments, the American people are not yet hopelessly mortgaged," George declared.

"Although they are buying $4,000,000,000 to $5,000,000,000 in installment goods a year and some $15,000,000,000 in open credit, the fact remains that the grocer, the butcher and the candlestick maker usually get their money and the last installment is usually paid."

The survey of retail credit practices is the first nationwide check on credit made in American history according to George. He said it has opened to the government and to business as well, a wealth of new knowledge on many matters with hitherto lay in the limbo of guess work.

By this survey the individual retailer and wholesaler has obtained a basis for comparing his credit practices with those of others in his field, and thereby "their wisdom or unwisdom". It has given an insight into the tangled credit growth in the last decade that now occupies an important, but not entirely understood, place in the national business system.

Credit Loss Small.
"The national survey was conducted by the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce at the request of, and in cooperation with the National Retail Credit association, local credit bureaus, chambers of commerce and other trade and commercial organizations," George said.

"The real burden of the loss is carried in the section on credit losses. It is really a triumph for American business acumen that throughout all this welter of unregulated growth the average loss from bad debts on open-credit sales has been kept as low as 0.6 per cent. Electric appliance stores had the highest credit loss, 1.5 per cent. Radio sets and supply stores were second with open-credit losses of 1.4 per cent. Department stores kept the tightest grip on their business of all, thereby escaping with a loss of only 0.4 per cent."

"The average loss from bad debts on installment sales was 1.2 per cent. General clothing stores led with 8 per cent, while coal, wood, lumber and building material dealers brought up the rear with 0.2 per cent."

PARIS, Dec. 26.—After the approaching New Year it will be "follow the buttons" for every pedestrian in Paris, or jail. Workmen are pounding big brass nails night and day into every street crossing of the French capital in order to have them ready on this date, after which all jaywalkers will be severely punished.

Frenchmen are still crossing streets and boulevards in hit-and-miss fashion, disliking very much to be held down to rules and regulations put down by Prefect of Police Chippaux who is nevertheless not despairing of better days coming. Now that a large majority of taxicab drivers and other motorists are observing his orders, he is going to see to it that those on foot do the same so that traffic may be cleared up.

Seeks To Settle Controversy On Firemen's Fund

White's Opinion On State Fire Insurance Moneys To Be Recorded

PENSION MATTER INVOLVED IN CASE

Councilman Clayton H. Reeves today during council session again developed the controversy over money received here from business done by foreign fire insurance companies and asked when the city proposed to give to the Firemen's Relief Association a portion of the money which the association claims is due. The city for a number of years has received about $5,000 annually, and until 1922 this was turned over to the association.

The legal aspect of the problem was discussed pro and con, and an opinion presented some time ago by Solicitor White was ordered by Mr. Reeves to be placed on the city records. It was a voluminous document and delved into the question from various angles. It was placed on the records.

Later Mr. White, as solicitor for the city, was asked for a statement and it follows:
The amount of money received by the city for a number of years from the state out of foreign fire insurance tax has been about $5,000 a year.

Until about 1922 this money was turned over to the Firemen's Relief Association, which is an organization of volunteer firemen.

In about 1922 Mr. Gardner prepared and the city passed an ordinance providing for policemen's and firemen's pension.

This pension ordinance does not follow exactly the provisions of the state law with regard to pensions in that it does not provide for any assessment on the men themselves, and for that reason there is some question as to its validity.

Until the ordinance is declared invalid, however, it is a part of the city law and the council must assume that it is a valid law.

The ordinance of 1922 provided that there should be appropriated every year about $4,000 to the pension fund to pay police pensions.

The ordinance of 1922 provided that there should be paid out of the state insurance money each year to the pension fund the same amount of money as had been appropriated by the city for the police in order to pay firemen's pensions.

After the passage of the ordinance of 1922 the city stopped giving all of the insurance money from the city to the volunteer firemen.

Each year from 1922 until 1923 the council kept out of the insurance money about $4,000—to be exact, they kept out the same amount that was appropriated for the police.

After taking out of the insurance money these amounts each year the city gave the volunteer firemen's association the balance of the money received from the state up to and including the year 1927.

There has been appropriated to the pension fund every year a total amount approximating about $8,000 a year from general revenues and the foreign insurance fund, so that there is now charged on the city books about $40,000 to pay pensions.

Until some action is taken by council providing otherwise, none of the $40,000 can be collected by any person except a policeman or fireman who is entitled to a pension.

Instead of allowing the $40,000 in actual cash to remain in the treasurer's office since 1922, the council has from time to time used that money for other city purposes, so that there is not now actually in the treasurer's hands cash to meet that appropriation.

In order to set aside in the treasurer's hands that amount of money it would be necessary to levy about one mill additional tax.

Midnight Mass Draws Immense Throng People

St. Vitus Church Scene Of Wonderful Ceremony Marking Christmas Season

With more than a thousand people crowded into the spacious interior of St. Vitus church and scores of worshippers outside unable to get in, midnight mass at that church was one of the most impressive in the history of the parish.

The church was in complete darkness except for the candles on the altar, when at the stroke of 12 o'clock midnight the ceremony got under way.

With the priests, altar boys and girls dressed as angels kneeling about the altar, the chimes resounded the glad tidings of the birth of another Christmas and the prayer of the coming Saviour was intoned.

After a brief period, Rev. Fr. N. DeMita, pastor of the church and celebrant, found the Holy Infant in front of the altar and intoned Gloria In Excelsis as the church was flooded with lights. All knelt in homage to the infant Jesus.

The procession of priests, bearing the infant Jesus, 46 altar boys and many girls attired as angels then proceeded to the crib in front of the altar to the Mother of Sorrows. The crib and the scene depicted in true European style was a thing of great

CITY PREPARES TO GET GROUND

White Asks Council To Pass Ordinance Providing For New Street

Council today reported from committee an ordinance which provides for the locating and establishing of a street between East Washington street and Cunningham avenue along the P. H. B. & N. C. railway route. The ordinance will be printed and passed. Under an arrangement made years ago the city is to pay $2,300, to the Lehigh Portland Cement company for the land.

Council intimated there may be a hitch to the city securing the strip of ground. Solicitor White informed them that was the reason he wanted the ordinance passed. The P. H. B. & N. C. railway company according to White promised to give the city a deed for the ground but has failed to do so.

Should the city not secure the ground the city will condemn the land and ask that a board of viewers be appointed. White expressed the opinion that as $2,300 had been the sum agreed to it wasn't likely that any board of viewers would award more than nominal damages.

Embezzler Is Given Sentence

St. Mary's Church Crowded Christmas Eve At High Mass

Sermon Is Delivered By Father Regis Krah, O. M. Cap

Every available space in the spacious parish church of St. Mary's Congregation was filled with worshippers on Christmas Eve and participated in the Midnight Mass held in commemoration of the Birth of Christ.

The scene can hardly be described other than that it was most impressive and inspired all those fortunate to be present.

Father P. J. McKenna, the pastor, was the celebrant of the Mass. Father Regis Krah, O. M. Cap, deacon and Father J. Dudley New, sub-deacon. Father F. S. Clifford was in charge of the choir.

At the close of the Mass, Father McKenna as pastor, extended to those present the blessings and greetings of the season, after which Father Krah delivered a masterly sermon on the Birth of Christ.

The singing of the choir was very effective and also very inspirational and was never heard to a better advantage than at this service. Garth Edmundson, organist of the First Baptist church, presided at the pipe-organ and his rendition of the music of the service, including several new compositions of his own, was such as to increase the devotion of those present.

The regular Sunday schedule of masses was observed in the morning and all were attended by congregations that filled the church. The music of the final Solemn High Mass was of the same wonderful character as that of the midnight mass.

$35,000 Is Asked From Truck Driver

Mrs. Mary Russo And Husband,
Thomas, File Suit Against
M. Seigler

In a suit filed at the prothonotary's office this morning, Mrs. Mary Russo, and her husband, Thomas Russo, ask $35,000 damages as the result of injuries sustained by Mrs. Russo, when a truck driven by M. Seigler struck a street car in which Mrs. Russo was a passenger.

Mrs. Russo says that she was en route up town on the street car and was sitting in the second seat from the front. As the street car approached the grade at the west end of the Gardner avenue viaduct, a truck driven by Seigler, going west, crashed into the front end of the street car. Mrs. Russo was thrown over the seat in front of her and sustained injuries which laid her up for a long time. She says that $215 was spent in doctor bills, nurses and medicines. She declares that she has been permanently injured, and that Seigler was careless in the operation of the truck. She asks $35,000 and her husband for loss of services, $10,000.

The employees complied with the request but lodged written protests when they signed slips turning the fees over to the city treasurer.

It developed that the county commissioners then refused to pay the witness fees to the city treasurer.

Reeves' repealer will go to the printing office and when it returns to council will be voted upon finally.

Armed Bandits Rob Grocery Store

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Dec. 26.—Two armed bandits escaped with $1,250 cash from the grocery store of Fred Haufnagle a few minutes after he had opened for business today.

His small daughter, discovering the plight of her father a short time later, released the grocer.

City To Continue Fight On Trucks

Council today directed Solicitor Robert White to prepare a brief and present it to the Public Service commission in an effort to help prevent the granting of a certificate to the Harmony Short Line Transportation company for the transportation by truck of freight over highways between New Castle and Pittsburgh.

What a country! They'll let you pay $5 a month for a play pretty worth $685, but try to borrow that much on the same terms, to buy something you need.

the position that companies have no right to use the state highways for such business inasmuch as it takes freight shipment away from railroads in this vicinity.

A hearing on the application of the company was held recently at Pittsburgh. Numerous cities in this section opposed the application. New Castle was represented by Solicitor White.

Santa Claus Visits Margaret Henry Home

Real Santa Claus And Helper Hand Out Gifts On Christmas Evening

Syria Shrine And Kiwanis Club Combine To Make Christmas A Merry One

Santa Claus was more than generous to the children of the Margaret Henry home Christmas eve, when he visited them, bringing a gift of toys and candy for each child and in addition, supplied a bountiful turkey dinner for Christmas day.

It was indeed a joyful sight to watch the children receive their gifts and open them around the big Christmas tree which had been erected in the assembly room at the home.

The children had been put to bed at the accustomed hour, after the older ones had returned from singing Christmas carols at the community tree on the diamond, and all were tired and sleepy.

Then at 11:30, Santa and his helpers and guests repaired to the sleeping rooms as the alarm was rung, and such a scrambling as resulted. The children had been told that Santa Claus was coming and there was no doubt about the fact in the minds of the older children as they had remembered his visit of the previous year.

Children Sing Carols. Several of the smaller tots were just too sleepy to wake up and were carried downstairs, where they finally came to, amidst the shouting and singing. Before Santa Claus and his assistant handed out the gifts the children sang Christmas songs and carols, making the big room ring with their joyful songs.

After the gifts had been handed out to the children, they filed out into the assembly room, where they were opened around the big Christmas tree, which had been lighted. It was after 1 o'clock before the children were willing to quit exploring the wonders of their packages, and retire again to their little beds.

The gifts distributed Christmas eve were contributed by Syria Shrine of Pittsburgh, which numbers many members in New Castle, as a part of their annual Christmas program. C. Ed Brown was chairman of the distribution for New Castle, and was assisted by William J. Wray and Dr. H. H. Rosenthal, each dressed as Santa Claus, who handed out the gifts. This is the 11th year that Mr. Wray has served in this capacity.

Quite a number of friends were on hand to witness the sight, which is well worth going up to the home to see. One can scarcely vision the joy the children receive from this annual visitation. But for them, some of the children might not be remembered as it takes a lot of toys and candy to go around among 65 kiddies. There are actually 58 children residing at the home, but seven others are cared for and were included among the home children, who received the gifts.

Other Gifts Received. Late Christmas evening a number of sleds, scooters, dolls and other toys were sent to the home by the Hancy Furniture company, in addition to the toys distributed by the Shriners.

There were several people from a distance who were present at the festivities Christmas evening, including Miss Helen Navish of Newark, N. J., former local girl, who resided at the home; C. E. McDougal of Pittsburgh, a member of Syria Shrine, who always comes up to attend the Christmas eve party; Mr. and Mrs. William Scheibel and daughter Florence of Cleveland, O., guests of Dr. and Mrs. Rosenthal, and Miss Mary Castles of East McKeesport, guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. Ed Brown.

On Christmas morning there was another big surprise in store for the children, for there piled about the Christmas tree were the gifts contributed by the members of the Kiwanis club, which had been sent to the home Wednesday, and stored away in a secret place. The candy which had been sent by the Shriners was also handed out to the little tots, and there was a repetition of the scene of the evening before.

The committee which had charge of the Kiwanis club's activity at the home consisted of Chairman Charles B. Phillips, R. M. Campbell and George Elwell. Each gift was separately wrapped with the receiver's name attached.

A little later, the children gathered in the dining room, where they enjoyed a turkey dinner with all the trimmings, which was given by James Wallace of this city, one of the fairy godfathers of the home.

All in all, it was a real Christmas day for the kiddies, who will look back on the event for many a day to come.

Chicago Priests Robbed By Bandits

Bandits Force Way Into Parish House And Stage Holdup That Nets $2,500

(International News Service) CHICAGO, Dec. 26.—Two bandits who held up our priests and left them bound and gagged in the parish house of St. Adalbert's church today had escaped with $2,500, the Christmas service collection.

The gunmen forced their way into the parish house last night just after Father Casimir Gronkowski had counted the money and placed it in a drawer.

One bandit produced a coil of rope and they bound the priests one after another, taped gags in their mouths and forced them to lie on the floor.

They went directly to the cash drawer, scooped up the money and escaped.

CITY MISSION WORK

Editor News: Perhaps no city of its size has sent more comfort and joy into needy homes throughout the Christmas season than New Castle which justly earns the title of "The City of Benevolence"—and if you ask me I want to add that I am proud to be a resident of a city whose aim is to help its fellow man along life's way.

United in purpose and effort to serve and serve well, it has been so successfully carried out by the great heart of New Castle through these strenuous days of unemployment and with the cooperation of its churches, organizations, clubs and individuals bonded together as one great body many desolate homes in New Castle were made happy during this holy season. Farmers, markets and stores have so generously aided such to make life worth living among the unfortunate of our city and now that brings to mind again the wonderful work of our City Rescue Mission where daily nearly one hundred meals are served—and nightly so many men seek shelter.

The Christmas season has meant busy days for the Mission folks but with the many problems and heavy responsibilities placed upon the superintendent Rev. B. J. Watkins. You are always greeted with a smile and a desire to tell you of the work if you will but call.

One hundred splendid Christmas baskets were given to needy people this year with added clothing and in other ways help given.

One of the great features of the year is the annual Christmas entertainment and treat for the Sunday school children and this year, on Tuesday evening, December 23, it was simple a case of standing room only, for the big mission room was packed to the doors.

The program recently published was delightfully rendered by the children following the scripture read by Rev. B. J. Watkins and the invocation by John Baynham.

At the close of the program came such a splendid treat almost all donated including 360 pounds of fine candy, which such to make life worth living to put under their little bells. All those whose time and labor to this wonderful Christmas party are to be congratulated upon their successful effort to make children happy and the Master has said "A little child shall lead them."

No Extension For 1930 License Tags

Warning Is Issued That 1931 Tags Must Be On Cars January 1

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 26.—A last-minute call to car owners who have not yet applied for 1931 registration was sounded today by the Pennsylvania Motor Federation. State unit of the A. A. A., through its eighty-eight member clubs. The Federation warned that no extension of time in the use of 1930 plates will be granted by the authorities and that the owner of any vehicle on the road without new tags after midnight next Wednesday will be liable to arrest and fine.

In a statement issued from the Federation headquarters here S. E. Ward, A. A. A. president, said:

"Thousands of motorists in Pennsylvania have not yet applied for their 1931 registration although but a few days remain for use of the old tags. Some have delayed sending in the application for no good reason at all; others have had a good cause, but whatever the delay so far, don't hold off a minute longer if you want a license for use January 1. One minute after the New Year bells stop ringing you will be liable to arrest if you haven't the new plates on your car and officers throughout the State have been notified to enforce this provision of the law to the letter."

"No speed law will interfere with your sending in your license plate application post-haste. The Bureau of Motor Vehicles at Harrisburg will be closed on New Year's Day, but applications received before that time will be taken care of as speedily as the augmented corps of clerks can handle the rush. There is yet a chance to get your plates by January 1 if you mail that application immediately."

"The State makes plates for the following year available to motorists three months before use of them is mandatory and permits placing them on the car as early as December 15, but despite this thousands of car owners wait until the last minute, then pile up the labors of already overburdened clerks by adding their application to the final hectic rush, and are greatly perturbed if the plates do not arrive in time for use on January 1."

"Step on it! Mail that application now, if you haven't already done so. And add to your list of New Year's resolutions a determination not to wait until the last minute next year in applying for your motor vehicle tags."

Hand In Wringer; Arm Badly Crushed

Jimmie, the five year old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Bates of Buffalo, N. Y., former residents of this city, met with a painful accident the early part of this week when he put his hand into an electric wringer.

The little chap had gone down into the laundry to speak to his mother and as she turned her back to hang up some clothes he tried to put a handkerchief through the wringer and caught his hand. Before his mother could get the wringer stopped his hand and arm had been pulled in several inches. Although no bones were broken the arm was badly crushed and bruised.

He is the grandson of Mrs. William Marso, Shenango street.

Highway Contracts Involve Spending Of Big Sum In Biennium

HARRISBURG, Dec. 26.—The close of the present administration is bringing to a finish a period of intensive highway construction for Pennsylvania. Since January 1, 1929 contracts have been let for the improvement of 1519.34 miles of road exclusive of the letting on December 18.

This gigantic construction program was financed from current revenues. The total amount of the contracts in the last two years is $84,056,346.47. In addition to financing this work without loan funds millions were spent for maintenance, and township reward grants for aiding the improvement of rural roads.

During the present construction season more than 1000 miles of road have been surfaced. There were nearly 500 more miles of State highway surfaced in the last year of the Fisher administration than during 1929. Department forces this year have surfaced nearly 300 miles of road bringing the seasons total up to more than 1300 the goal originally fixed early in 1929 when the construction program for the 1929-31 biennium was planned.

In June of this year contracts were let by the Highway Department involving 125.52 miles of road costing $7,293,868 while September of last year tops the list for 1929 when forty five contracts were awarded for 128.16 miles of road to cost $7,360,633.20.

From January 1 up to December 1 of this year the Public Service Commission issued sixty orders affecting crossings on State Highway routes. The total estimated cost of this work was $5,135,555, of which the department has been directed to pay $1,990,769.

Elimination of twenty grade crossings have been provided for in the orders made by the Commission. In addition fifteen bridges were ordered reconstructed two undergrade bridges eliminated and the relocation of eighteen grade crossings.

Three Are Missing, Ten Rescued When Speed Boat Upsets

Speeding Boat Upsets Off California Shore; Ferry Boat Rescues Ten

(International News Service) SAUSALITO, Cal., Dec. 26.—Three men were reported missing and 10 others were rescued early today after a small speed boat was swamped three-quarters of a mile off shore. The 10 men rescued were picked up by the crew of the ferry boat Tamaulipas, which had just put into her berth from San Francisco.

Those reported missing are: Ernest Rogers, A. Van Scoy and unidentified man known as "Bill".

Those rescued were: Joseph Scores, James Martinoni, Joseph Martini, William George, Elmer Zaro, William Lewis, Horace Burton, Edward Sousa, Halmer Jonsson and Sam Bowman.

The party of men were said to have been en route to a yacht in the harbor to participate in a late Christmas party.

The speed boat was believed to have been swamped either because it was overloaded or by a ground swell.

Celebrate Christmas By Adopting Babies

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Dec. 26.—There was a new meaning to Christmas in fourteen Arkansas families Thursday.

And at the Arkansas Orphans Home there were fourteen vacancies at the big table where 54 children expressed mirrored the generous Christmas dinner.

Out there at the "home" a blue-eyed, golden-haired bit of mischief, eighteen months old, is badly missed.

Maui was the youngest to find a new family.

Clarence was gone, too. Clarence was the oldest of the group who left the "home" a fifteen-year old black haired youngster.

They were not envious there at the "home" because they, too, may soon find sponsors in the outside world.

More than 150 applications were received this Christmas for the adoption of children, all but four of them refused by officials. Seven were invited out to dinner on trial.

Propose New Route For Air Travel

(International News Service) PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 26.—A new coast air route east of the Cascades from The Dalles, Ore., south to Los Angeles was suggested by Tex Rankin, veteran Portland flier, to delegates of five western states gathered here for the western regional traffic and aviation conference. The new route was proposed as a remedy for foggy flying west of the coast range.

Rankin pointed out that the eastern route could be used when conditions are not satisfactory along the coast. Fog is seldom found east of the Cascades and as most of the flying would be done over desert lands, emergency landing fields could be made almost anywhere.

Rankin said.

ROAMING

With Richards

Some News, Some Views, But Mostly Just Observations Of Interesting Things Around New Castle

There's another one in the ag. Another day of exchanging presents, eating too much, smoking too much, tripping over toys and barking shins, assuring the folks that it "was just what I needed" and wishing everybody a Merry Christmas.

The engineer of this collyum had a rather large day of it. Got more presents than he deserved, ate more candy than he should, and today is on a diet. You remember the paraphrase of the old classic, "eat drink and be merry, for tomorrow we die?"

It takes grandmothers to give youngsters the things their parents wouldn't buy. Saw one youth strutting plenty of stuff yesterday in an iron mike and a pair of ankle beaters, both of which came from the grandfolds.

Up betimes, and to the relations for dinner, where we did yeoman service on a fowl. So to call upon friends who did press upon us much sweetmeat and nuts, not to mention a basket of fruit which had been gathered from the four corners of the country. To the estedid in the evening where we did hearken to the musician and orators. And so to bed.

Dave Nelson who is by way of being a police sergeant at nights, gave a demonstration of what man can accomplish with a handicap last night. Peanuts are not for folks who have their crockery out. Dave has. But he got away with a flock of peanuts last night by the simple expedient of smashing the crockers with a hammer before eating them.

Take a ride over the town tonight and see the lights. There are some really excellent displays, costing plenty of money and time. You'll find it worth while after dinner to crank up the bus and take the folks out.

One chap I know had a cosmopolitan Christmas. The spruce and snapper decorations he had came from Vermont, his pineapples came from Porto Rico, his oranges came from Louisiana, the grapefruit from Texas, the nuts from Texas, and the stuffed dates and holly from Southern California. All of them had seen sent in by friends. About the only things he lacked was a couple of Eskimos from Alaska.

But about those lights on the homes of the townsperson. There's one on Sheridan avenue well worth your while. Just in from Highland it is. There's another on East Washington street up at Dos Seals. There's one on Edison avenue with a spruce decoration running around the door jam and lights sprinkled in it. East Winter avenue is all decoration, Delaware has a lot, Berger Woods has some keen combinations, and way up on the top of the hill on Fairfield and Englewood you'll find some interesting sights.

Some of the early morning radio fans got a surprise Christmas morning. About ten o'clock, station KDKA crashed through with a program from Tokio which had been relayed by the way of Frisco. The tubes could hardly handle the Japanese music but got through it without serious damage.

Later in the day England broadcast a program which was relayed through KDKA. Sort of a world wide wish wishing. You get some idea of how marvelous this thing called radio is when you remember that you heard Tokio had talking, one eighteenth of a second after the words, left his lips. The fraction may be wrong, but figure it for yourself and you'll get an answer somewhere near there.

The most desolate spot in town last night was the busiest spot in town for a week previously, the post office lobby. Not a soul or a sound in there, just quietness, and lots of it. No long line of folks filing past the stamp window, no jostling of packages, or tramping on feet. Just quietness.

Seek Goodnough As House Speaker Men's Bible Class Contest To Close

Philadelphia Organization Inaugurates Move For Speaker

(International News Service) PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 26.—A statewide movement for the endorsement of Representative C. J. Goodnough for speaker of the house of representatives in the forthcoming legislative session has been inaugurated under the sponsorship of the Philadelphia Sabbath Association. The Lord's Day Alliance of Pennsylvania, it was announced here at the headquarters of the former group.

The movement for Goodnough, it was said, was set in motion when Goodnough was declared by advocates of an "open Sunday" to be of "faded and unpromising opinion on that question."

"With Goodnough as speaker, both sides of the Sunday law question will get fair treatment," the Rev. Dr. William B. Forney, secretary of the Philadelphia Sabbath Association, said. "Goodnough's record is a guarantee of fairness from the speaker from the time the bill concerning the question is introduced until it is finally disposed of."

Goodnough's individual opinion of the "blue laws," Dr. Forney said, will not affect his attitude toward pending legislation as speaker.

"He has never in his legislative career done aught that savored of prejudice," Dr. Forney said.

"Mr. Goodnough," he continued, "has the hearty approval of Governor-elect Pinchot who needs his capability and experience to carry through the program of important legislation he is preparing."

Pennsylvania Turning Cityward In Less Haste

(Special To The News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 26.—Pennsylvania has been turning cityward with less rapidly than the country as a whole, it would appear from an analysis of census figures made public by the bureau of the census.

The population of Pennsylvania when the census was taken this year was 67.8 per cent urban whereas in 1920 only 64.3 per cent of the State's residents lived in urban areas, the census bureau figures reveal. The ratio or urban to rural population increased 3.5 per cent during the decade, analysis of the data indicates. The urban population of the country as a whole, on the other hand, increased from 51.4 per cent of the total population in 1920 to 56.2 per cent in 1930, a climb of 4.8 per cent.

That the Pennsylvania population is more concentrated in urban regions than is the population of the country as a whole, however, is indicated by the fact that whereas 67.8 per cent of Pennsylvania's residents are urban, only 56.2 per cent of the 1930 population of the nation lives in urban communities. Only seven states report a greater concentration of population in the cities than Pennsylvania, those being Rhode Island, Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, Illinois, California, and Connecticut, in the order named.

The census bureau figures list the 1930 Pennsylvania population as 9,631,350, rural residents numbering 3,967,139 and urban totaling 6,634,211. The 1920 population of 8,720,017 was divided into 3,112,292 rural and 5,607,725 urban individuals.

The census bureau points out that in the classification of population this year, ten townships in Pennsylvania are rated as urban which in the 1920 population count were considered as rural. This fact would alter the Pennsylvania figures to a small degree but not sufficiently to be of significance, the bureau believes.

Business Is Proceeding Toward Normal Economic Condition For New Year

John E. Edgerton, President
Of National Association
Of Manufacturers,
Speaks

Forecasts Return To Business Prosperity Sometime
Within Year Of 1931

By W. S. COUSINS
International News Service Financial Editor.

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—American business is proceeding slowly toward a normal economic condition and will reach it some time in the year 1931, according to John E. Edgerton, president of the National Association of Manufacturers.

Mr. Edgerton has given the International News Service today the results of a recent survey among the members of the manufacturers' association which will show that current operations are nearly 87 per cent of normal, with a recession of only 5.67 per cent in employment.

Only Small Decrease.
"Within the ranks of the National Association of Manufacturers," said Mr. Edgerton today, "a recent survey showed that, among 939 companies, they are operating at the very favorable rate of 86.81 per cent of normal; also, contrary to mere guesses as to the actual extent of unemployment, there has been a recession in employment during the last five months of only 5.67 per cent."

"Nothing is to be gained, in my opinion, from an effort to disguise or minimize the fact that the year 1930, in comparison with other recent prosperous years, falls below a standard in which we have perhaps too quickly become accustomed. On the whole, the manufacturers of the nation have not only realized that they are just completing a bad year, but they have reconciled themselves to it and are coping with the conditions in the optimistic belief that sounder times are slowly but inevitably approaching. Such pessimism as exists is the result, I think, of taking abnormally prosperous years since the world as a basis for comparing the conditions of the present."

Pace Slackened.
"The head of the manufacturers' association points out that far more serious conditions than those of the present day were seen in many of the first 30 years of this century. "While the pace of our economic progress has slackened for a time," said Mr. Edgerton, "we are without doubt still moving forward even if it is by almost imperceptible degrees. In the balancing we should weigh the fact that even under normal conditions two out of every five of the nation's manufacturing establishments operate at a loss. The reports which come to me now indicate that a very large number of plants are confronted with a certainty of red ink at the closing of the year. That manufacturer, therefore, who has enough business to keep his plant operating and his people employed, even though he does not operate with a profit, or even at some loss, regards himself as lucky... and there are plenty of them in just that situation.

"I know that the greatest concern the manufacturers in general have is not over the prospect of no profits or small profits, but of keeping their people employed without the necessity of reducing wages. There has been very little evidence of a disposition on the part of industrial employers to recede, except under irresistible pressure, from the high wage standards which constitute a part of the basis of our economic prosperity.

Must Pay Price.
"The speed of our progress will depend, in my opinion, upon how well we have learned from recent experiences that nations, like individuals, which go on gambling sprees, and undertake to accumulate surpluses in unjust ways, and without work, must pay the price in some sort of unhappy effect. Congresses cannot repeal, statisticians and experts cannot argue away the fundamental law of life that what-soever is sown is going to be reaped.

"The only defensible attitude for any accountable citizen to take is that of an optimist, who believes that no one has greater responsibility than he for the betterment of our country's condition, and that he will make the very best use of all the opportunities of which he is capable. The pessimists for the most part are those who are looking beyond themselves for relief from those conditions to which they themselves have contributed either positively or negatively.

"They are seeking to fix the blame upon government, upon Wall street, upon some other person or persons in unhappy situations. Those who are busiest trying to earn the rights which they claim have comparatively little to worry about. Those of any class who are trying to collect what they have not earned by their own efforts, or to obtain immunity from the responsibilities of life, are those who are doing most of the gambling."

Auto Fatalities In Marked Drop

HARRISBURG, Dec. 26.—Pennsylvania motor vehicle operators are the rights of pedestrians, according to Motor Vehicles Commissioner Benjamin G. Eynon. Up to December 1, the number of pedestrians killed this year was 837, and 9103 were injured. During the similar period in 1929 the number killed was 885, and the number injured was 8879.

"That the number killed this year is less than in 1929 is not to the credit of motor car drivers," Commissioner Eynon said. "Nearly 300 more pedestrians were struck than last year. That the number of killings decreased is simply an item of good luck—not of good judgment on the part of drivers.

"Operators lost sight of a very important clause in the Motor Code—and so do peace officers, court officials and members of juries. Sub-section 'c' of section 1013 provides that 'the driver of any vehicle, street car, or trackless trolley omnibus, upon a highway within a business or residence street, shall yield the right of way to a pedestrian crossing such highway within a crosswalk, except at intersections where the movement of traffic is being regulated by a peace officer or traffic signal."

"In every city of Pennsylvania—in every borough and town, it will be found that operators willfully regard the Code provision that a vehicle's speed must be reduced to twenty miles per hour at intersections. This provision operates on thru-traffic streets, despite opinions to the contrary. The majority of motor crashes occur at intersections, simply because addle-pated drivers disregard the law limiting them to twenty miles an hour. The popular method today of passing an intersection seems to be to step down on the accelerator, blow the horn, and expect cars and pedestrians ahead to evaporate. If the Pennsylvania Legislature adopts much more stringent regulations motorists themselves will be to blame."

Must Keep Record Of Oleo Dealings

HARRISBURG, Dec. 26.—Dealers in oleomargarine who fail to keep a proper record of all receipts, are just as subject to prosecution for failure to meet this provision of the law as they would be in selling an artificially colored product or in not having a license, says Dr. James W. Kellogg, director, bureau of foods and chemistry, in a statement issued by the Pennsylvania department of agriculture.

"The law specifically requires every wholesale dealer to keep an accurate record of every sale and shipment, including the quantity, the person to whom sold and the place to which it is shipped," Dr. Kellogg explains. "Every retail dealer is also required to keep an account in a special book, of the date of receipt of all purchases of oleomargarine, showing when and from whom purchases were made and the quantities involved."

WILL HONOR BADGES
HARRISBURG, Dec. 26.—Inasmuch as the Ohio legislature at its forthcoming session will thresh out the matter of chauffeurs' licenses, Chambers R. Wilson, Ohio commissioner of motor vehicles, has informed Pennsylvania authorities that 1930 Ohio chauffeur's badges and certificates will be honored until the general assembly takes definite action.

Budget Huge Sum In Road Program To Help Jobless

Wyoming Planning For Big Road Building Campaign In 1931

(International News Service)
CHEYENNE, Wyo., Dec. 26.—Wyoming will spend more than double the amount in 1931 ever spent before in a single year for highway construction and maintenance as an answer to the request of federal government officials that as much public work be started as possible, in order to relieve unemployment.

The 1931 Wyoming highway program will call for the expenditure of $5,800,000—$4,000,000 for new highways and $1,800,000 for maintenance. Of this amount $2,012,000 will be provided by federal aid. Wyoming will match every cent of available federal funds.

Highway projects to be completed in 1931 will give a continuous hard-surfaced road from the north to the south end of the state, according to Z. E. Severson, state highway engineer.

New grading will total 375 miles, grading and drainage work 425 miles and gravel or stone surfacing 510 miles.

Gov. Frank C. Emerson pointed out that not only would highway work at this time relieve unemployment but would also enable the state to accomplish the work at less expense than formerly.

State funds for the 1931 road program will come from oil royalties, license fees, gas tax funds and from a $2,800,000 bond issue.

The north-south highway, when completed, will connect Cheyenne and Denver with Billings and other Montana points on a continuous improved road. A stretch of road between Midwest and Kaycee and another six miles north of Wheatland are yet to be graded on this route.

Other projects include regrading along the Lincoln highway in the western part of the state, the grading of a 45-mile stretch between Walsman and Shoshone, reconstruction and surfacing of the highway from Centennial to Santa Fe through the Medicine Bow mountains and surfacing on the Rocky Mountain highway between Dubois and Moran.

Senator Robinson Attacks Relief As Being Inadequate

Congressional Relief Methods Vigorously Attacked By Arkansas Senator

(International News Service)
LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Dec. 26.—The five day working week may prove a solution for present unemployment evils was the opinion advanced today by Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democratic leader in the senate, in a statement criticizing congressional relief efforts as inadequate.

"Unemployment seems to be increasing rather than diminishing," the Senator stated. "The congressional act appropriating $116,000,000 for speeding up public works may be put into effect at once, but it appears inadequate."

Senator Robinson said it was almost impossible to bring to authorities who do not live in the areas where conditions are worst a realization of the situation's seriousness. The Red Cross and other relief agencies are not able to cope with the situation in areas of extreme need, he said.

Garner Approves Soldier Payment

Rep. Garner, Texas, Democratic Leaders Says Payment
To Soldiers Good Plan

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—Backers of immediate payment of the soldiers bonus gained a powerful ally today when Rep. John N. Garner of Texas, Democratic leader of the house, declared the payment would be just and have a stimulating effect upon business.

The "Soldiers' Bloc" of the house, urging the plan, now has 92 signatures to a petition to force consideration of bills to this end by the ways and means committee. A renewed effort will be made to add others to the movement when congressional reconvenes.

Garner, in a formal statement, urged the cash payment be made optional, and expressed the opinion that not over 80 per cent of the veterans would abandon their 20-year insurance certificate for payment in cash.

Three Youths Are Held In Attack

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Dec. 26.—Attacked by three youths while carrying a gallon of moonshine liquor in a sack, Clifford Calford 34, a negro, is in the Providence hospital here in a critical condition from a probable fracture of the skull, a gouged left eye and a compound fracture of the thumb, police reported. Steve Borinko, 18; John Carbone, 18; and Joe Faziki, 22, all of Beaver Falls were arrested.

Police reported Calford was hailed by the three youths, who demanded his liquor. He ran into an alley, where the youths followed and attacked him. Eye witnesses told police. The jug of whiskey had disappeared when police arrived.

Fatigue, Underweight, Sign Of Tuberculosis

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Three special features of tuberculosis make it advisable to keep the public regularly informed of the early symptoms of tuberculosis.

First is the insidious nature of the disease. When diseases begin with pain, this sends the patient immediately to the doctor. There is rarely any pain felt during the onset of tuberculosis. When diseases begin dramatically with a hemorrhage or convulsion they demand instant attention. Only rarely does tuberculosis come on in this manner. It is the gradual creeping on of ill health, so slowly that the patient can hardly say when he began to feel badly, until the condition is full blown before it is realized, that makes it so difficult to handle.

Second, the earlier the diagnosis the better the chances for cure. Third, tuberculosis is a disease of young people. It takes its toll from those who have futures, not like heart disease or high blood pressure from those who have pasts. It is to save the young, the hopeful, the promising that we go to do battle against this enemy.

There are several methods of onset. Fatigue is the outstanding symptom of one kind. It is not ordinary fatigue; it is not nervous tiredness. It is a fatigue so heavy, soaching that it seems almost too much to be borne; every fiber in every muscle is crying for rest. When this occurs regularly in a young person who is not exerting more strenuously than others of the same age, it should be investigated by a physician.

Cough may be the prominent symptom. Colds that "hang on," coughs that recur frequently and last a long time, coughs that continue so that they are hardly noticed, habitual clearing of the throat—none of these should be neglected. Loss of weight may be unnoticed and deceptive, but is always significant. Regular underweight is more deceptive than any. The person who keeps "such a fashionable, slim figure," who responds so readily to a reducing diet, should really see a doctor.

The patients who have a hemorrhage early in the disease are the luckiest of any. Because this is one of the dramatic methods of onset I mentioned above. Sometimes there is suddenly coughed up as much as a cupful of blood. This frightens! It cannot be ignored. It demands explanation, investigation. It calls for the doctor.

The old picture of the consumptive is passing. We do not have to wait for the emaciated, pale invalid, with the bony hands, the spot of red on the cheeks, the hacking cough, the large, bright eyes to make the diagnosis now. The enemy can be spotted much earlier in the game and, by that means, defeated.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Three pamphlets and three articles by Dr. Clending can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin for each pamphlet and 2 cents in coin for each article, with a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to Dr. Logan Clending, in care of this paper, or Central Press Association, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O. ## Special Fund Being Probed

Nye Seeks Bank Records On Use Made Of Fund

By PIERCE MILLER
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—Bank records of the Republican national committee that might have a bearing on disposition of the $40,000 "special account" opened for the "convenience" of executive director Robert H. Lucas, have to all intents been impounded, it was learned today.

One of the last acts of Senator Gerald P. Nye, (R) of N. D., chairman of the senate campaign investigating committee, before a holiday truce was declared in its investigation of the anti-Norris Nebraska campaign fund, was to subpoena records of both the regular national committee account and the special account, in the Commercial National bank here. This action was taken, Nye explained, to prevent return to committee officials of cancelled checks drawn against the accounts, and still in the bank's possession.

Nye hopes to trace the source of the $40,000 check with which J. R. Nutt, treasurer of the Republican national committee, opened the special account, five days after Lucas ordered the literature which was sent into Nebraska, in an attempt to defeat the insurgent leader.

"The assumption now is," Nye said, the money was taken from the regular committee account. It may have come from elsewhere, but the committee wants to ascertain the facts."

Nutt will be called by the committee after the holidays and questioned concerning the source of this fund. He will be asked its uses, in addition to providing security for the Lucas $4,000 "personal" loan.

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—Poison holiday liquor caused five deaths in New York on Christmas, hospital reports showed today. Exclusive of deaths, a total of 59 cases of alcoholism were treated. The total cases in 1929 was 83 but no deaths from poison liquor were recorded.

41. George Rogers Clark—The Attack On Fort Sackville

ALL THROUGH THE NIGHT OF FEBRUARY 23, 1779, CLARK'S LITTLE BAND OF BUCKSKIN MEN KEPT BLAZING AWAY AT FORT SACKVILLE AND SUCCEEDED IN LEADING THE BRITISH GARRISON TO BELIEVE THAT A LARGE FORCE WAS BESIEGING THE PLACE.

HAMILTON WAS UNABLE TO BRING HIS ARTILLERY INTO ACTION. AS SOON AS A GUN PORT WAS OPENED CLARK'S WATCHFUL RIFLEMEN BEGAN PICKING OFF THE GUNNERS. THE DEADLY AIM OF THE BACKWOODSMEN DISMAYED THE GARRISON.

JUST BEFORE DAWN CLARK DREW BACK HIS MEN AND AT NINE O'CLOCK IN THE MORNING SENT A MESSAGE UNDER A WHITE FLAG TO HAMILTON, WARNING HIM THAT IF THE AMERICANS WERE OBLIGED TO STORM THE FORT HE WOULD BE TREATED AS A MURDERER.

HAMILTON REFUSING TO YIELD, CLARK'S MEN RENEWED THEIR DEADLY FIRE. IN THE AFTERNOON HAMILTON REQUESTED A 3-DAY TRUCE AND SUGGESTED TERMS. CLARK REJECTED THE BRITON'S PROPOSAL AND DEMANDED UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER.

NEW CASTLE-SOUTH PLAY HERE TONIGHT

Game At Senior High Gym
Tonight Will Start At 8:00 O'Clock

Expect Big Crowd To Witness Game; Locals After
Third Victory

New Castle high school 1930 basketball team plays its third game of the season tonight at Senior high gymnasium, meeting Youngstown South high. The game is scheduled to start promptly at 8:00 o'clock. The local red and black cagers following one week of practice are eager to cop the third victory of the season.

Fans who witnessed the last encounter between these two quintets still remember the contest put up by these rivals in Youngstown last week. In one of the best games seen in Youngstown, which was full of thrills, New Castle came through in the final two minutes to trim the Red and Blue cagers by a 26-20 score. Followers of both fives are looking forward to another tilt like that enacted in Youngstown last Friday night.

South left the floor last Friday night downcast due to the fact that they opened the season with a defeat. The Ohioans are coming here, optimistic about defeating the Senior High passers. A good game is certain.

Fans who haven't seen New Castle in action on the court yet will have an opportunity to do so against a worthy opponent which last year won the Youngstown title and appears to be headed towards another title. The local team will start play in the W. P. I. A. L. league race during the second week in January.

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Dec. 26.—The New Wilmington Merchants won a pair of basketball victories over the Christmas holidays, defeating the Wampum quintet 35 to 14, Christmas eve at Wampum, and taking the measure of the Wesley M. E. team of the New Castle Church League 43 to 16, last night at New Wilmington.

The Merchants were very impressive in both games. In the game last night the fine guarding of Patterson and Davis, together with spectacular field goal shooting by W. Hutchison and Myers featured the game.

The battle at Wampum was very rough and closely resembled a football encounter, but the Merchants lasted through it and took home a victory.

Jimmy Dehart Will Be Hunting Coaching Job

Duke University Football Coach Turns Out Winning Team, But Is Released

Wallace Wade, Alabama's
Wonder Coach Will Succeed Dehart

By LES CONKLIN
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—By a queer quirk of fate, one of the most successful coaches of the 1930 gridiron season will be looking for a job at the football meetings here next week.

And by a still queerer twist in the course of human events, one of the best coaching jobs in the country is likely to fall into his lap.

The man is Jimmy Dehart, who until three weeks ago was head coach of football and athletic director at Duke University. Duke had a disastrous season on the gridiron in 1929 and a year ago Dehart was informed his services would not be required after the close of the 1930 campaign.

Has Great Team
With nothing to lose, Dehart then proceeded to turn out one of the best teams in the South in 1930. Duke won four southern conference games, lost one and tied another. He beat Kentucky, Virginia, Washington and Lee and North Carolina State. His team lost to South Carolina and played a scoreless tie with the University of North Carolina.

In addition to that he beat the Navy outfit handily and trounced Villanova as effectively as did Washington State.

A year ago Dehart was the toast of Duke. Today he's the toast, and the football authorities at the Southern institution of learning are sorry that they gave him a year's notice in 1929 and signed up Wallace Wade of Alabama for 1931 before the 1930 season got under way but now it's too late for them to change their minds.

Tries New Offense
Fifteen or twenty institutions, three of them important fixtures in the gridiron firmament, are looking for winning coaches and Dehart has had offers or "feelers" from two thirds of them. He admits he has one very important engagement here next Monday.

Dehart developed a new attack with his 1930 team. He started the season with a small and unpromising squad and lost the opening game to South Carolina. Realizing he had everything to gain and nothing to lose, he decided to try out an offensive system on which he had been working for several years. He put it into effect the next week and Duke didn't lose another game—beating Virginia, Kentucky, Washington, and Lee, North Carolina State, Davidson, Navy and Villanova, and tying Wake Forest and the University of North Carolina.

The new offensive clicked beautifully and became known as the "mystery attack" because rival teams couldn't dope it out. Even in the scoreless tie with North Carolina the play worked for fifty yards, the only real offensive march of the day, but Duke fumbled the slippery ball a half a yard from the goal.

Has Fine Record
Dehart's southern conference teams at Washington and Lee and at Duke won 22 games and lost six. Previously, at Georgia, his team was unbeaten in Southern competition and lost only to Dartmouth and Harvard in intercollegiate contests.

Dehart was captain and quarterback of Pittsburgh's 1919 team, in 1918, when he was in the flying service, he captained, coached and played quarterback on the Mather field aviators eleven which beat Stanford one day and California the next. Walter Camp put Dehart on his all-service team as quarterback and captain.

Next year he probably will return to the limelight as coach of some prominent team. That is the story of Jimmy Dehart—a flop today and a king tomorrow.

Boxing Takes Limelight As Year Draws To Close

By JACK SORDS

Boxing took the limelight during December as the football season came to a thrilling close with the Notre Dame-Southern California and the Army-Navy games. The eyes of the football universe were focused on Los Angeles Dec. 6. There the undefeated Notre Dame team took a surprisingly easy victory from the powerful Southern California eleven, and, for the second consecutive year, earned a just claim to the mythical gridiron championship of the United States.

A week later the Army and Navy renewed athletic relations at the Yankee stadium in a game that was played for charity. The Army won 6 to 0, but only after the hardest kind of a fight.

One ring championship was successfully defended when "Bat" Battalino, previously regarded as the "cheese champion" of the featherweights, won from the favorite Kid Chocolate after 15 fierce rounds of slugging in New York.

Other interesting developments during the month included:
Dec. 1.—John (Shano) Collins, former White Sox and Red Sox outfield star, was appointed manager of the Boston American league club, succeeding Heinie Wagner.
Dec. 9.—Ed Casey, a Harvard All-American halfback in 1919, and backfield coach during the past two seasons, was named to succeed Arnold Horween as head coach of the Crimson.
Dec. 10.—Eddie Shea defeated Fidel La Barba in a 10-round ring upset at Cleveland.
Dec. 12.—J. R. Ludlow Wray, head football coach at the University of Pennsylvania, was let out following the Quakers' disastrous season.
Dec. 12.—Young Stribling won a close decision over Tuffy Griffiths in a bristling 10-round contest in the Chicago stadium.
Dec. 14.—The New York Giants, professional team, beat a team of former Notre Dame stars, 22 to 0, before 50,000 fans in a charity game at New York.
Dec. 18.—Erwin Rudolph won the world pocket billiard championship, defeating Ralph Greenleaf, defend-

Peck Lee Will Coach Saints

County Detective Promises To Turn Out Fast St. Mary's
Quintet

Peck Lee, former Ellwood City High football and basketball coach, now Lawrence County's six-foot six County Detective, has been secured to coach the St. Mary's Athletic Association basketball team. The opening game for the newly created team will come on Monday night when they tangle with the strong Duquesne University quintet. The game will be played at the St. Mary's club floor, on North Beaver street.

Announcement of the signing of Peck Lee to coach the local team was made this morning by Joseph Graham, president of the Association. The Saints are very fortunate in securing a coach the caliber of Peck Lee, who despite his law duties has turned out many fine basketball and football teams.

The Saints will have a strong lineup, composed of ex-high and college stars, including Russ Hannon, and probably Regis McAnley after he is through at Senior High. The lineup is not known yet, but it will contain the names of many familiar to New Castle basketball fans.

Duquesne has promised to bring the regular varsity lineup to New Castle to oppose the Saints, and that means that "Ganzzy" Benedict and Brud Stephens will be among them. This pair is quite dangerous to floor teams.

NEW YORK STOCKS

Narrow Price Range
In Stock Market

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—Stocks drifted through an extremely narrow price range in dull and narrow trading this morning. Transactions in the first half-hour totaled only 181,000 shares, and the market's activity was even smaller in the second hour. Near the noon period a better demand developed for the Oils, Coppers and Motors, with upturns of a point or less in the best known stocks.

Aside from the usual swapping around of the professionals, the market had no incentive to move far in any directions. The dribble of tax selling appears to have dried up, for the time being, while investment buying is still in the watchful-waiting stage. No new light on the business and industrial situation was thrown by the reports and statements of the day, but most business heads are confident of a turn for the better after the first of the year.

Anaconda Copper sold above 29 for a new gain of 1 1/4. General Motors sold above 35. Standard of N. J. led the upturn in the Oils and sold up about a point at 47 1/2. Consolidated Gas, Electric Power and other well known Utilities sold fractionally higher, and the list in general improved as the slow and dull session wore along.

Grain and Cotton firmed up in the forenoon trading and reached slightly higher levels. Call money was firm at 2 per cent, with considerable calling of loans for year-end bank settlements. The bond market was dull and steady.

The court held for the young man. The judges reasoned thus: If one incurs a legal liability, the liability is sufficient to support a promise made by the person at whose request it was incurred.
